VIENNA, Sept. 28.—Nearly 100 residents of the small town of Uggel, in the Lichtenstein district, are isolated in their homes, calling vainly for help which cannot reach them since every boat sent to their rescue is wrecked by the raging waters, reports coming from Buchu, witzerland, state, in the meantime homes of these people who are harried by flood waters are in imminent danger of collapsing because their foundations have been weakened. The Swiss Government has rushed troops by special train to aid in the rescue but so far their efforts have been futile. ONE-MAN CREW CROSSES OCEAN

SEAMAN VOYAGES OVER ATLANTIC IN SMALL HULK THAT HE REFITTED

His Companions Are Dog and Cat—Slept by Day and Traveled at Night

MADRID, Sept. 28.—Adventures from Las Palmas, in the Canary Islands, port the arrival there from the hull of a small boat manned by a single seaman, who said that he had come from the United States. His only companions were a dog and a cat. He has a wife and several children in Las Palmas.

When Hoahna started his trip he aimed to sleep in the day and to travel at night so that his trip, the Dispatch, would not be down by transatlantic liners. He had a small boat, which he had bought as an abandoned hulk for $5 and refitted, was ready to sail to weather ocean storms. Hoahna, a forty-year-old veteran seaman of Spanish and German descent, equipped his tiny vessel with a compass, a tin can, a watch, a small chart, two vials and a parallel rule and two tent logs were his only instruments, and he planned to depend on the North Star for guidance.

BRIBE TAKING IS ACCUSATION

Fisheries Official on Trial at Vancouver Assizes—Was Supposed to Guard Prohibited Fishing Waters

LAW SAID TO BE FREELY VIOLATED

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28.—Indications that Government fishery officers had permitted systematic fishing in prohibited waters near Smith Inlet, around July, 1926, appeared in evidence submitted during the hearing of the charge of bribery against Morris M. Williams, fisheries guardian, which took place in Vancouver Assize Court this afternoon.

A. L. Hall, fisherman, questioned by G. S. Wismer, crown prosecutor, declared that Williams had loaned him $30 and suggested he pay it to P. Christensen, another fisheries guardian, as a bribe to permit his fishing in Quichela Creek and the spawning grounds near Smith Inlet.

Other statements made by Hall were that over twelve other fishermen were fishing in the prohibited area on the day in question, June 15, 1926, and that he believed it was a usual custom, provided they paid for permits.

GOOD FISHING

Hall said he caught 152 salmon in the prohibited area on the day mentioned. He said he had met Christensen and the accused near the creek at night. During the conversation about fishing in the lagoon, Hall said Christensen remarked $50 was his price. Hall did not deny that he had taken $50 from Williams to come to him and offered to lend him $30 to offer Christensen. Christensen's explanation in the witness box, elicited by the prosecutor, was that he had asked him permission to fish and that he had refused. Later, he said, his companion, the accused, suggested he accept $30 from Hall, which he did. Cross-examined, Christensen admitted he had pleaded guilty to accepting the bribe before Judge Day, recently, and that he had been released on suspended sentence.

SMOKE CAUSES SCHOOL PANIC

Discipline Prevails and 600 Children Are Brought Safely Out of Quebec School

CHICOUTIMI, Que., Sept. 28.—Quick work by the nuns and school teachers and the fortunate absence of 200 very young pupils at recess averted a dangerous situation when two furnaces in the St. Joseph d'Alma Catholic School exploded yesterday and struck terror into the hearts of some 600 children of various ages. Smoke and steam spread throughout the institution.

Thinking the four-story building was on fire, the panic-stricken children rushed for all exits, including the windows. Several were prevented from jumping through the upper windows to certain death by the speedy action of the teachers, who ordered them to march in orderly fashion down the stairways in parties of four, held by mattresses in place of fire safety devices, to receive anyone falling. The sister suffered slight bruises. Alice Guy, a teacher, suffered a broken leg. The damage was considerable.

JOHNSTOWN HERO OF FLOOD DIES

EBENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 28.—Edward R. Macdonald, sixty-six, who emulated Paul Revere by dashing through the valley on horseback to warn residents of approach of the flood that wiped out Johnstown in 1889, died today. He had warned thousands of the water when he was overtaken by the flood, but he and his horse reached safety.

SALMON CATCH CUT ONE HALF

WASHINGTON EXPERTS SAID TO BE MYSTIFIED BY GREAT FALLING OFF

Fishing Commissioner Says Government Regulations Are Not at Fault in Matter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—For reasons as yet a mystery, both to the fishing industry and to Government experts, the salmon catch on the Pacific Coast this year has been reduced to about fifty per cent of normal.

Henry O'Malley, Commissioner of Fisheries, estimated today that the Alaska catch had been cut to 3,500,000 cases, and Puget Sound had been reduced to 875,000 cases, both figures being barely more than one-half the 1926 catch. In British Columbia the 1927 catch of salmon amounted to 374,382 cases as compared with 786,097 cases in 1926.

PINK SALMON

"We are entirely at a loss to know why the salmon failed to put in their appearance on the fishing grounds this year," Commissioner O'Malley said. "The pink salmon variety, which is a fish which lives through a two-year cycle in salt water, was plentiful on the spawning grounds in 1925, which should have brought the school back to the fresh water streams in Alaska and Puget Sound in large numbers this year, but for some reason the fish have been killed off, or for some other reason they have failed to appear. All sorts of stories have been circulated to account for the disappearance, among them one attributing the death of the fish at sea due to submarine earthquake disturbances, but we have no record of that. The Government regulations, which have been adopted in Alaska in recent years for the protection of the fisheries have nothing to do with the matter."

In spite of the disappearance of the fish this year, the pink salmon reason to presume that the salmon in 1928 and later years will continue to make their appearance on the fishing grounds at the outset of the spawning season. The salmon industry is accustomed to great fluctuations in the catch and the consequent output of canned salmon.

Government May Consider Within Next Few Weeks

OTTAWA, Sept. 28.—While no official announcement with regard to the Canadian attitude on the St. Lawrence waterways is forthcoming at the moment, it is stated here that the report of the joint engineering board and its voluminous appendices probably will be considered by the Government within the next few weeks. The appendices, it is estimated, will fill three volumes.

CHILDREN IN SCHOOL FEAR CANNIBALISM

Juveniles in Czechoslovakian Town Strike for Separate Schools Apart From Swarthy Comrades

PARENTS DECLARE PUPILS IN DANGER

Protest Grows Out of Alleged Cannibalistic Orgies in Which Gypsies Indulged Last Year

PRAGUE, Sept. 28.—School children in the town of Homonna, Czechoslovakia, have struck for separate schools because of their instinctive fear that the swarthy juvenile nomads beside whom they sit have cannibalistic proclivities. The striking children have been strongly supported by their parents, who declare that their children are in danger of being eaten. Seeing the forces of their arguments, the authorities have decided to build a separate school for the gypsy children, which it is believed would be the only one of its kind in the world. The present protest grew from alleged cannibalistic orgies of last year for which thirty-six gypsies are now awaiting trial. They are said to have confessed to devouring scores of persons, pleading the times were bad and they could not afford to buy ordinary meat but that they did not see "anything wrong in human flesh."

COAST GUARD IS ARRESTED

British Boat in British Territory Waters Off Bahamas Seized by U.S. Cutter and Cargo Removed

CHARGE MADE OF STEALING GOODS

NASSAU, Bahamas, Sept. 28.—Mr. C. H. Neale, American, who is being held in the custody of the British authorities, has been sent under escort by mail boat to Nassau. Neale, the charges against whom are the theft of a motor car and receiving stolen goods, will be tried in the Bimini Supreme Court, probably during the October sessions.

A complaint to the British Commissioner of Bimini was made that on the ninth of September a motor boat with a cargo of whiskey was loaded on a schooner at the Gun Key Lighthouse in British waters by a vessel resembling a United States coast guard cutter and that the cargo was landed by the attackers at Cat Key, a desolate island. The commander of the cutter at the time of the attack was said to be an American named Neale and the liquor was said to be in his possession at Cat Key. A search warrant was issued and the liquor was found there, Neale being arrested by the Bimini Commission.

From what they have seen of British Columbia on their trip through to Vancouver and Victoria last week and what they have learned of the whole Neale-Puget Sound area since their arrival on the coast, these Eastern financial leaders declared that they were going to turn money into British Columbia as readily as they have been turning it into Northern Ontario and Quebec during the last year.

Last year the members of the association went for their convention excursion into the Saguenay-Chicoutimi area of Quebec. Their visit there has resulted in a tremendous impetus to the flow of United States funds into the water-power, mineral and timber resources of that part of Canada.

This year's convention excursion this week will be by the C.P.R. steamer Princess Marguerite up the British Columbia coast to Ocean Falls and it is predicted here that it will have as important results to British Columbia as the excursion of last year had to Quebec.

S.A. COMMANDER BACK IN LONDON

Sister of Commander-in-Chief of Salvation Army in Favor of "N.S. Prohibition"

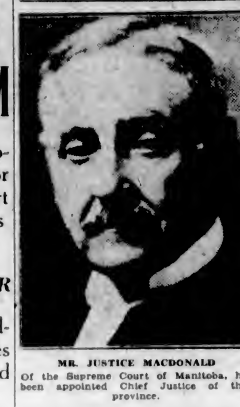

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The liquor problem in the United States will be a question of the past in another generation, Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, predicted at Central Hall, Westminster, which Salvationists jammed tonight in welcoming her to London after an absence of eight years.

"In another generation I believe liquor will have totally disappeared," she said amid applause. Miss Booth, who went to America twenty-three years ago from London, was now in her eighty-third year, and will spend a few weeks in the provinces prior to taking a holiday in France, and thence proceeding home to the United States.

BANKERS SEEK TO END MENACE

Investment Bankers' Association Urges National Responsibility for Preventing Mississippi Floods

PROVINCE OF B.C. EXCITES INTEREST

SEATTLE, Sept. 28.—The Investment Bankers' Association of America today urged the Federal Government to end permanently the Mississippi Valley flood menace. In a resolution unanimously adopted at the conclusion of an address by Governor E. Martinson of Arkansas, who charged that the national Government's "failure to discharge a responsibility which it owed to the people of the Mississippi Valley" was directly responsible for the floods of this year, the investment bankers declared that they recognize control of the flood waters of the Mississippi and its tributaries as a national duty.

"Loss of life resulting from periodic overflows," the resolution asserted, "seriously affects and impairs the economic welfare of the entire nation. The Government of the United States should take steps to deal promptly, effectively and permanently with this pressing national problem."

B.C. EXCURSION

Interest in Canadian opportunities is one of the dominant features of the convention here of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, with 700 members representing billions of dollars in investment capital.

There is a consciousness that Canada today presents the greatest opportunity for the profitable employment of capital on the North American continent.

From what they have seen of British Columbia on their trip through to Vancouver and Victoria last week and what they have learned of the whole Neale-Puget Sound area since their arrival on the coast, these Eastern financial leaders declared that they were going to turn money into British Columbia as readily as they have been turning it into Northern Ontario and Quebec during the last year.

Last year the members of the association went for their convention excursion into the Saguenay-Chicoutimi area of Quebec. Their visit there has resulted in a tremendous impetus to the flow of United States funds into the water-power, mineral and timber resources of that part of Canada.

SENATOR AT AGE OF 100 IS VIGOROUS

Birthday Celebrated by Man Appointed to Senate at Age of Seventy-Nine in Laurier's Time

HAS NEVER MISSED SESSION OF HOUSE

Entered Politics by Becoming Candidate for Legislature When Sixty-Nine Years Old

SAINT HYACINTHE, Que., Sept. 28.—Senator George Casimir Desaulles, tomorrow celebrates his one hundredth birthday, and this town will be in a festive celebration event.

Senator Desaulles was seventy-nine years old when appointed to the Senate to represent Rougemont division. Sir Wilfrid Laurier appointed him in 1907 to replace Sir William Hingston. The latter was seventy-eight at his death, and when some people criticized Sir Wilfrid for appointing a man nearly eighty years old, he answered: "I know Mr. Desaulles; he will bury many Senators younger than he is."

That prophecy has, indeed, been justified, as the Senator has never missed a session since his appointment. His first plunge into active politics was at the age of sixty-nine, in 1897, when he replaced, on the eve of nomination day, the Liberal candidate for the Legislature, his son-in-law, Maurice St. Jacques, K.C., who was fatally ill. He then polled a majority in every booth in St. Hyacinthe.

The Senator is still in good health and has never had a headache.

FARMS POURING GOLDEN GRAIN

MORE THAN FOUR MILLION BUSHELS MARKED TUESDAY ON PRAIRIES

Rattle of Grain Wagons Over Rural Roads Almost Continuous—Ideal Weather

WINNIPEG, Sept. 28.—The rattle of grain wagons over the rural roads of the Prairies have become almost continuous and marketing figures are steadily climbing.

Tuesday saw the passing of the 2,500,000 bushel mark at points on the Canadian Pacific Railway when farmers loaded a total of 2,513,034 bushels of grain in the elevators.

A total of 660 cars were routed to the head of the Lakes yesterday, 650 cars being delivered at the waterfront and 662 unloaded. Shipments by boat amounted to 240,000 bushels.

The Canadian National reported 1,584,000 bushels of grain marketed Tuesday in the three Prairie Provinces.

Both railways reported harvesting operations to be in full swing all over the West, with ideal weather conditions prevailing.

LOAN SOCIETY'S SUIT REFUSED

Pioneer Savings and Loan Society Sought Certificate to Do Business

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28.—By judgment of Mr. Justice Morrison in Supreme Court an application has been refused for a writ of mandamus against the registrar of companies at Victoria.

The application was made by E. R. Sugarman on behalf of Pioneer Savings and Loan Society, which sought a certificate under the Savings and Loan Association Act, 1927, entitling it to carry on business throughout the province. The registrar had proposed to restrict its business to two counties.

Mr. Sugarman says that the judgment will be appealed. The Pioneer Savings and Loan Society is one of the organizations, it is learned, that was required under the legislation passed at the last session of the Legislature to make certain changes in connection with its business before being granted a certificate to carry on under the new Act. There were a number of these in the province which were required to make the changes called for by the Pioneer Company apparently was not prepared to comply with all the restrictions that the registrar of companies required of it.

PLANNER OF TRAGEDY DIES

MILAN GIGANOVICH OF SARAJEVO COMES TO HIS OWN GRAVE

Believed to Be Plotter of Assassination That Led to Outbreak of Great War

VIENNA, Sept. 28.—A grim echo of the Great War was heard today in the death at Uskub, Yugoslavia, of Milan Giganovich, mentioned in the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia on the eve of the outbreak of the world war, as one of the conspirators in the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria and the Archduchess, at Sarajevo. Giganovich, it is recalled, was believed to have elaborated the plan for the murder of the Austrian Archduke, and procured the arms and false passports for the plotters. Under Article 7 of the ultimatum, Austria demanded that Serbia, arrest and deliver him and his superior, Major Vojta Tankovich, who was Giganovich's superior.

Major Tankovich was reported to have been killed in action at Kragevatz, in December, 1915. The actual assassin of the Archduke and Archduchess was Giganovich, who died in an Austrian prison in 1918. Giganovich was forty years old.

PILGRIMAGE TO BEGIN HERE

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Long, of This City, Will Embark on Broad Highway of Adventure

ROUND THE WORLD IN NINE YEARS

Not many men would leave the secure position of a trusted bank messenger to embark on the precarious sustenance and adventures of an embarking character, incidental to a round-the-world walking tour.

Such, however, is the plan of Mr. C. R. Long, an employee of one of the leading local banks, who, with his wife will leave in a few days on a nine-year walking tour, which he hopes will bring him back here in 1934.

A book is to be written of the adventure, and for that purpose a record will be carried to secure the signatures of prominent people in the cities and states to be visited.

Mr. Long is not undertaking the great task without experience. He has tramped in India, Egypt, South Africa, and elsewhere, and is a veteran of two wars and also of the Irish campaign.

There is no wager, nor is any financial inducement being held out to him to complete the tour within the specified period, as is often the case in these wanderings. Mr. and Mrs. Long will not ask for "lifts" from motorists, aviators, steamship owners or other forms of transportation, but will readily use any facilities which are voluntarily forthcoming. They are going to depend on the "voluntary courtesy" of those who use the great world lanes of travel, or stray into the byways of the earth's waste spaces.

Both are of athletic type and quite ready to stand the hardships involved in such a strenuous occupation, not the least difficult of which is to accustom themselves to the various foods of foreign lands and alien races.

Jury Reports on Beauval Indian School Disaster

SASKATOON, Sask., Sept. 28.—The jury investigating the Beauval Indian school fire has returned the following verdict, according to information received from Beauval tonight: "We find that Sister Len and the nineteen children of the Beauval Indian school met their deaths at about 11 p.m., September 19, by fire which destroyed the Indian school, origin of the fire unknown. We exonerate the people of the said mission of all blame, and we congratulate the sisters on the great effort made by them in saving the girls."

"We further recommend that the authorities erect buildings of this nature with proper equipment in case of fire, and we further suggest that the furnace should be kept out of the school and placed in a separate building. We also recommend the keeping of a night watchman."

Legacies Left

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28.—Legacies will fall to the British and Foreign Bible Society and the Church of England Society for Waifs and Strays, both of London, England, according to the will of A. W. Peen, of Mission, who died August 1, filed in Supreme Court today. Of the gross estate valued at $23,272 left by Mr. Peen, $3,000 was bequeathed to the Bible Society, while the entire residue was left to the other organization. No relatives were named in the will.

Classic Music Beats Jazz in Monkey House

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 27.—"Poetry," a twelve-year-old Asiatic elephant at the Philadelphia Zoo, blew a trunkful of water over an orchestra which had come to play for her in behalf of science the other day.

The act was done during the playing of a rag-time piece, "Poetry," chained ten yards from the orchestra, stretched forward until the end of her trunk dipped in the water of the pool in which the elephants bathe each afternoon.

With deliberate movement the elephant's trunk was raised and aimed at the musicians, who upon their chairs in a scramble to escape. That was "Poetry's" reaction to music.

The orchestra played for the animals at the zoo so that Emerson Brown, director of the zoological garden, could record their actions. Classical music achieved victory over jazz in the monkey house.

The first rumbles, squeaks, chirps and bleats from the instruments as they were tuned up in the monkey house brought consternation to the occupants. Big and little monkeys, chimpanzees, orang-outangs, mandrills, marmosets and all the others played the most lively curiosity, mingled with other emotions.

Noticing the diverse reactions, the musicians tried each instrument separately. So the drummer tapped a rat-a-tat-tat on his drum and the monkeys crowded in corners of their cages in evident fear.

Then the violinist swung his bow over the strings. Instantly the monkeys became quiet. Some came forward to the bars of their cages and gave evidence of finding the sound soothing. But once the trumpet and the trumpet, each in turn, sent shivers of fear once more over the audience and the moment the musical instruments were stilled the monkeys set up an angry clamor.

But when the bass violin grunted out a few notes, the monkeys gazed at each other and at the instrument in seeming amazement. They crowded to the bars and blinked their eyes as if trying solemnly and with all the power at their command to understand.

Jazz Band in Church Draws Big Audience

LONDON, Sept. 27.—A jazz band in St. Stephen's Church, Blackpool, Lancashire, during Sunday morning proved such a popular attraction that the church was crowded half an hour before the service began. The band was a dance band from the Winter Gardens of Blackpool, and the service at which it played was held in connection with the Actors' Church Union, of which the vicar, Rev. P. B. Freshwater, is the local chaplain.

The vicar, in his sermon, referred to the fact that the ark was brought to the Holy City with shouting, the sound of the cornet, with drums and cymbals making a noise, and with psalteries and harps. He did not suppose they had the word jazz in those days, but it read uncommonly like a jazz band.

He mentioned this, he said, to illustrate the absurdity of the conventional ideas of narrow-minded people as to what instruments should be heard in church.

The band played "The War March of the Priests" (Mendelssohn).

WINNERS IN "CLASS B" RACE

PORTLAND, Sept. 28.—Leslie C. Miller, Des Moines, who for three days and nights, he says, lost large chunks of sleep planning how he would win the race, captured the first prize of $1,000 in the Class "B" division of the Spokane-Portland air derby today. He flew his Eagle Rock biplane from the Washington city to Swan Island airport, here in an elapsed time of 4 hours, 31 minutes and 55 seconds.

Eleven finalists and 29 seconds slower than Miller's time, C. W. Meyers, of Detroit, Michigan, landed on the field to take second place and $500 prize money. He flew a Waco biplane.

Gerald F. Smith, of Tacoma, took third place and $250 in his Eagle Rock biplane, the City of Tacoma. His time was 6 minutes 26 seconds slower than Meyers.

CAPTURES ARCTIC OWL ON LAST TRIP

Capt. A. H. Sargent, of Canadian Pacific, has secured a "Taurus" Experience

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—What is probably an indication of the experience was recounted recently by Captain A. H. Sargent, R.R.N.R., former commander of the Canadian Pacific mail ship, the Taurus, who here on a visit, having retired from the sea last year, and having taken this first opportunity to renew the acquaintance of many friends in the city. Last year on his last voyage on the Brecon he captured a huge Arctic owl, which had dropped on the Brecon out of a mid-Atlantic sky. Just forty-four years before he caught a similar bird on his first voyage. He commented on this strange fact, that it should be on the first and last ships that he captured a prize which is the fortune of few to possess or even to see.

Captain Sargent's presence in Montreal is an indication of the attractions which Canada retains for many people who have traveled widely and visited all parts of the world and he is only one of many sea captains who, on retirement, have paid Montreal a visit. He is returning to Liverpool by the Ss. Montreal, commanded by Captain G. Hamilton.

Captain Sargent has seen service with the Canadian Pacific for many years. Going to sea at the age of sixteen, for eleven years he served on sailing ships, and another thirteen years were spent on the ships of the Orient Line between Australia and South America. In 1914, when he returned to the Atlantic, he has seen constant service on Canadian Pacific ships, and has been in command of the Marcho, Brecon, Bellingbrooke, Bratton, Bosworth and Batsford.

During the war period he was in command of the Ss. Mount Temple in the North Atlantic, when she was attacked by a German raider on December 6, 1916. The latter opened fire before the small gun on the Mount Temple could be brought into action. Four men were killed and Captain Sargent was made prisoner and spent two years in Germany. Resuming command in 1919, he was on the bridges of several Canadian Pacific ships until his retirement at the close of the St. Lawrence navigation season in 1926.

MORE DRIED FRUITS FROM AUSTRALIA

As the result of the visit of the representatives of the Australian dried fruits industry to Canada in recent months, and sympathetic interest taken in their mission by importers, considerable shipments of raisins and currants have gone forward during the last month or two to the principal Canadian distributing centres, writes Trade Commissioner D. H. Ross, Melbourne, in the forthcoming issue of The Commercial Intelligence Journal.

While the Canadian preferential tariff on Australian raisins and currants has been beneficial to the growers, many of whom are ex-soldiers, hitherto shipments to the Dominion had not increased to the desired extent. It is believed that the sales of currants to Canada during 1926 season will largely exceed those made this year, while increased interest was also being taken in raisins.

From present indications it would appear that through lack of available supplies there may not be sufficient currants on hand to satisfy this season's Canadian demand.

Not Sabotage

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—The air crash at Schles, in which Baron Ago von Maltzan, German Ambassador to the United States was killed, was not caused by sabotage, neglect or mismanagement, says a report made by an official inquiry commission submitted to the Ministry of Transport today. The report says that it was ascertained from an examination of the wrecked plane that the upper fitting of the left back stay broke.

VISITORS PLEASED WITH SOLARIUM

Victoria Women's Institute Makes First Visit to Mill Bay—Gratified With Institution

Numerous instances of remarkable benefits to crippled children which are being effected at the Queen Alexandra Solarium were found by the nineteen members of the Victoria Women's Institute who yesterday visited Mill Bay. The ladies, who were making their first visit as an organization to the Solarium, came away enthusiastic in their expressions of approval, and gratified with the part which they had had, together with the other Women's Institutes of the province, in its establishment.

Leaving the city at 2 o'clock, the visitors were welcomed at the Solarium by Miss Stone, the superintendent, and immediately began their inspection of the place. The ladies, who were making their first visit as an organization to the Solarium, came away enthusiastic in their expressions of approval, and gratified with the part which they had had, together with the other Women's Institutes of the province, in its establishment.

ROADS PLANNED ACCIDENT PROOF

Saskatchewan Engineer Describes Graded Ditches to Good Roads Convention

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 28.—Delegates attending the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association, which is in session here have apparently become imbued with the "safety first" at yesterday's sessions, for continuously throughout the discussions today the speakers steered from their original topic, to safety first suggestions. H. R. Mackenzie, chief field engineer for Saskatchewan, stated that his province was planning its rural roads with the aim of making them accident proof. The roads were being constructed twenty-four feet wide, and with ditches at such a gradual slant that an automobile could run into them at a fair speed and still fall to turn turtle or fall on its side.

FEDERAL AID

In touching upon the question of Federal aid, the prelude to a resolution pointed out that the Dominion Government had collected upwards of $175,000,000 in the past ten years which could be traced directly and indirectly to the highways. In view of this, the association instructed its executive committee to make every reasonable effort to induce the Federal Government to grant financial assistance to the building of good roads.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Hon. P. C. Black, Minister of Highways, Nova Scotia; first vice-president, Hon. O. L. McPherson, Minister of Highways, Alberta; second vice-president, Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, British Columbia; secretary-treasurer, G. A. McNamee, Montreal.

Monument to Women Lost in War Urged

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Is there an "Unknown Woman"? This question is raised in The Daily News by the suggestion to erect a memorial to the nurses and English women who lost their lives in the war near the tomb of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey. A writer in the journal of the National Citizens' Union urges a petition to the authorities to further the object.

Many women lost their lives during the war, the number of officers alone being 152, but it is doubtful whether one remained unidentified. The Daily News says, "It was a sadly simple task to exhume the body from one of the countless graves of unknown soldiers in Flanders, but it would be a vastly different matter to find the grave of an unknown woman."

The general secretary of the National Citizens' Union, Col. H. D. Lawrence, has told The Daily News that no steps are being taken to forward the scheme at present.

"There is a memorial to women who lost their lives in the war at York Minster, where the Five Sisters' window has been re-erected to their memory. Whether this represents the women who gave their lives in the war or merely the women of York I do not know," he said.

Captain Stanley Abbott, late secretary-general to the National Citizens' Union, considers that the memorial to the Unknown Warrior included all who lost their lives in the war, and that women were included in the great idea.

MESSAGE MYSTIFIES SHIPPING CIRCLES

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—Shipping circles here were mystified tonight by a message received by the Federal Telegraph Company at 7:56 p.m., indicating that a ship was in distress off Point Arguello on the Santa Barbara County coast. The message came to the Federal Company from the navy radio station at Port Aruello and said that a ship was sending up rockets and appeared to be in distress and to please have ships stand by. The Federal Company received the message relayed by the steamship Yale and sent out instructions to ships to stand by as requested. At 8:15 p.m. the steamship "Tillamook" reported she was within three miles of the point at the time rockets were reported but saw none. At 9:55 p.m. the Tillamook reported she had covered all the immediate area north and south of the point and found nothing and was proceeding on her way.

Mrs. Horn Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would not now be without it now. I had a female trouble so bad I could hardly walk and I was all run-down and could hardly get around to do my housework. I would be in bed three or four days at a time. I was told by a friend to try your Vegetable Compound, and I did, and by the time I took two bottles I was beginning to get around again. I took ten bottles in all, and now I am all right and doing my own work. I have six grown-ups to work for, so I have plenty to do. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I think if more of it was used women would be better off. I would not be without it if it cost much more."

THE WADING POOL

The cement wading pool was also inspected. This is now completed, and makes an important addition to the institution, for sea bathing is as useful in the treatment as the sunlight, diet, massage and splints. The women's institute tag day was held on behalf of the wading pool fund. Cement walks lead from the main building to the wading pool, so that chair-ridden patients can be taken down to the water's edge without difficulty. The pool is right at the sea's edge, and is filled by means of a sluice at high tide, and the water rapidly warms under the sun.

Before leaving, Mrs. K. Palmer, president of the Victoria institute, on behalf of the visiting ladies, expressed their pleasure, interest, and gratification in the Solarium. Before leaving the visitors distributed several parcels of fruit which they had taken up for the children.

Stone Age Peddler's Stock-in-Trade Found

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 23.—The 4,500-year-old stock-in-trade of a Stone Age peddler in flint axes has been found by some workmen in a gravel pit in the Swedish province of Soedermanland. The peddler's hoard consisted of a number of light grey flint axes of exquisite shape and workmanship, evidently hidden in the ground by the trader, who seems to have wandered a long way from the south of Sweden to barter his axes for the precious furs of the hunters of the Soedermanland forests. The poor peddler seems to have met his death, for he never returned for his axes, that are now said to be the best find of its kind ever made in that part of Sweden.

Almost every week new important discoveries of treasures hidden thousands of years ago, runic stones, grave mounds and wall drawings, are reported from different parts of Sweden, the soil of which has turned out to be a vast treasure house for archaeologists.

Never a Milk Shortage

WITH Carnation on the pantry shelf there is never a shortage of double-rich, absolutely pure milk for every milk use. For Carnation can be bought at a time—it keeps indefinitely. It even keeps several days after the tin is opened, so that there is no waste.

Because Carnation is just pure, fresh milk evaporated to double richness and kept safe by sterilization, it meets every need for milk or cream. Order several tins or a case of 48 tins from your grocer.

CARNATION JELLIED RICE—One cup Carnation Milk diluted with 1 cup water, 3 level teaspoons granulated gelatin, 1/4 cup rice cooked in milk till tender, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 cup cream beaten stiff, fruit to taste. Soak gelatin in a little of milk till tender. Add rest of milk boiling hot, rice and sugar. When cool fold in cream and chill. Unmould and serve with any fruit and heavy cream. REALTORS WILL EXAMINE TAXES

REAL ESTATE BOARD NAMES COMMITTEE TO DEAL WITH PRESSING PROBLEM

Mr. Fred Landsberg Claims Only
Way to Get Justice Is to Create
Independent Revision Court

A special committee of the Real Estate Board of Victoria, composed of ex-Alderman David Leeming and Messrs. James Forman and Joseph C. Bridgman, was appointed by the board yesterday to look into the fundamental problems of taxation, and to suggest remedies in a report which it will make to the organization.

The subject of taxation was brought before the board by Mr. David Leeming, who claimed that the land owner had borne the burden of taxation in Victoria long enough, and that conditions here were approaching a state of communism.

Mr. Leeming said "the whole system of taxation here is putrid." The property owner had paid unreasonably, and he maintained that the land owners had been taxed and were being taxed at a rate under which they could not survive.

Mr. James Forman said that realtors were naturally very interested in this problem of taxation, and suggested that Mr. Leeming give a paper on the subject at a future meeting.

ONE OF THE PROBLEMS
Alderman Outhbert Holmes told the meeting that the school problem was one of the biggest to be dealt with. He believed that two or three members of the City Council should also sit on the School Board, including the Mayor and the chairman of the civic finance committee and one other alderman. There should be a fair division of weight on the School Board between the school trustees alone and representatives of the Council.

"Land owners should co-operate, agree on standards and rates of rent, and fight for what they considered fair. If they would do this, it would cure a great deal of the troubles of the real estate world here," the alderman thought.

Alderman Holmes said that there was only one way to avoid conflict, and that was for property owners to go to the court of revision. While there had been talk about "scandalous assessments," how many had gone to the court of revision and protested against their assessments?

"If you are satisfied with the present condition, all right, but if you want redress, then go to the court of revision and fight for it," said Alderman Holmes.

"WAY TO GET JUSTICE"
Mr. Fred Landsberg claimed that the only way to get justice was to have an independent court of revision.

"The assessor is a servant of the city," stated Mr. Landsberg, "and the aldermen are there in the court of revision to back him up. We get no justice or fair play, and will not stand a chance of doing so until we have an independent court. We want fair play in the assessment of city properties."

Mr. J. C. Bridgman said that "the court of revision does not and cannot believe in the values of the assessments which are handed out, if they are sane men."

Alderman Holmes declared that the Real Estate Board should go in a body to the City Council to get a remedy for these assessment matters. He stated that he was not defending the assessor. He suggested that the realtors should agitate for a fixed maximum taxation on land, representation of the City Council on the School Board, and campaign to promote co-operation among the land owners.

FIRMS REPORT ON SALES IN AUGUST

Total Is $263,390, According to Reports From Twenty-Two Local Real Estate Offices

Sales made by twenty-two Victoria real estate firms during the month of August, totalled $263,390, Secretary Hubert Lethaby reported at yesterday's fortnightly session of the Victoria Real Estate Board. Details of these sales were as follows: Dwellings, $118,969; residential lots, $30,805; acreage, $58,625; and business property, $55,000.

President A. R. Wolfenden appointed a special committee of the Board composed of Mr. James Forman, chairman, and Messrs. Alfred Carmichael and Beaumont Foggo, to consider a revision of the charges of realtors, and to report back to the body at its next meeting. Secretary Lethaby read one of the reports of the recent convention in Seattle of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which was discussed by local members. The twentieth annual parley of the national realtors body proved a most successful gathering, and matters of great moment and benefit to members of the profession were dealt with by outstanding speakers from various parts of America.

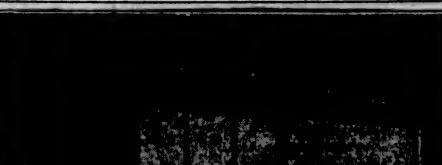

Premier Will Await Choice of Nelson Liberals

Premier MacLean will remain in the interior until after the Liberal nomination meeting at Nelson, which has been called for this evening. The Premier, it is expected, will leave following the nomination, but will not reach the capital until Sunday.

There are a number of names mentioned as probable nominees, but there is said to be no assurance of the ultimate choice of a candidate for the by-election, which must be held within the next few months if a general election is not called.

The decision on the part of the Liberals to name a candidate is accepted as almost a positive proof that the by-election will be called there with little delay, probably before the end of next month.

C.P.R. Raises a Question

Take out your dictionary and see if this is right or wrong. The photograph shows (or shows) an entrance leading up to a train at the new Union Station at Toronto and above the gateway the sign: "Shew Tick-ets Here."

This is proving quite a curiosity to the passengers using that station and providing them plenty to think about while on their train journey. It is quite noticeable in this modern age, especially after "show" is used generally. However, the Canadian Pacific Railway is a stickler for correctness, so there it is.

The new Union Station was officially opened by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales during his visit to Canada on August 8, and His Royal Highness called attention to the sign above his head and agreed with the officials of the C.P.R. upon its correctness.

WESTERN MAYORS WILL MEET HERE

Convention to Be Held in October of Far-Reaching Importance to This City

A convention which will be of much importance to Victoria because of its industrial policy, and which would cure a great deal of the troubles of the real estate world here, is the alderman thought.

The organization will convene here immediately following the convention of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities on October 20. Matters pertaining to freight rates, highways, interprovincial trade, immigration and other topics of general interest will be discussed.

One hundred and fifty delegates will be present. Among those coming from Saskatchewan is Mayor Gregory, of North Battleford, who is keenly interested in the Western movement of grain and the eastward movement of Alberta coal.

Mayor Gregory is president of the Union of Saskatchewan Municipalities.

Arrangements are being made at the city hall for the entertainment of the delegates. A large attendance is expected from British Columbia municipalities owing to the fact that there will be many mayors and reeves attending the convention.

The Union of British Columbia Municipalities to be held at Nanaimo on October 17, 18 and 19.

"FOR SALE" SIGNS
MAY BE REMOVED

Real Estate Salesmen Believe Such Notices Have Cheapening Effect on Residences

"For Sale" signs will be removed from residences in Greater Victoria, and no more will be put up, if the Real Estate Board of Victoria adopts the suggestion made by the salesmen of the local board.

The salesmen, their last meeting, passed the following resolution: "It is the opinion of the salesmen present at this meeting that the placing of 'For Sale' signs on residences in Greater Victoria has a cheapening effect upon these properties, and is producing an impression on visitors and even local residents very detrimental to values of Victoria real estate."

"Therefore it is resolved to ask the members of the Real Estate Board of Victoria to instruct their salesmen to remove all such signs from residences on which they may have been placed by said firms within a period of thirty days, and to refrain from putting up any new ones."

It was the opinion of those present at the meeting that an accurate survey of vacant houses would reveal a very great scarcity and that a knowledge of this fact would be of great value. It was decided that members of the Real Estate Board be asked to co-operate to secure this information by forwarding on a certain day, to be decided on, a list of all modern, comfortable, furnished houses then on their books to the secretary, giving the street and number. From this list the duplicates could be eliminated, and a fairly accurate figure arrived at, available.

These recommendations were read to the Real Estate Board at its session yesterday by Secretary Hubert Lethaby. The realtors decided to leave them on the table until next meeting, and in the meantime, each member of the board will be supplied with a copy of them.

AVIATOR ON MOTH COMPLETES FLIGHT

CAPTOWN, Sept. 28.—Lieutenant R. R. Bentley, instructor for the South African Air Force, who left London, England, on September 1 in a light "moth" airplane for Cape Town, completed his long solo flight of more than 7,000 miles at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Lieutenant Bentley, who made the trip in long hops to prove the feasibility of long-distance air communication, and to demonstrate the capabilities of a light plane on long distance flights, created what was said here to be a world's record for a long-distance solo flight.

Establishment Of an Airport Is Considered

ESTABLISHMENT of an airport was taken under consideration at a special meeting of the Industrial Committee of the City Council yesterday. Co-operation of adjoining municipalities will be sought.

A site has already been selected and approved of by the Dominion Government's airport inspector. This site is at Esquimalt. It is the intention of the city to level off the ground and erect a small air-drome at this site. In this way it is hoped to foster aviation in this city and encourage passenger and mail transportation by air.

The Victoria Real Estate Board, at its luncheon session yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce Cafe, reaffirmed its opposition to the two-year term for mayor proposal.

In introducing the matter, ex-Alderman David Leeming stated that the Union of British Columbia Municipalities would shortly be holding its annual convention at Nanaimo, and believed that a proposal against the two-year term should be forwarded to that party.

"If we have a good mayor, we will re-elect him; if we haven't, we won't want him. Why extend the term of a mayor from one to two years?" Mr. Leeming said.

The Board then unanimously adopted the following resolution: "That, in the opinion of this Real Estate Board of Victoria, the one-year term for mayor remain as heretofore, it not being in the interests of the City of Victoria that any change should be made."

"Further, that before a request for a change to a two-year term is placed before the British Columbia Legislature, the citizens and voters of Victoria should express their approval or otherwise, by referendum."

Secretary Hubert Lethaby was instructed to send copies of this resolution to the British Columbia Legislature, the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, the Mayor and City Council, the Real Estate Board of Vancouver, and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Man Pays Back Taxes to Make Voters' List

What price votes?
One Victorian has paid dearly for the privilege of expressing his opinion in an official way at the next civic election. Discovering that payment of the road and poll tax to the city was compulsory and that a non-property holder could not secure a vote without making payment, a man walked into the city treasury department yesterday and paid over to the cashier thirty-five dollars, which included this year's tax and the taxes for past four years which he had neglected to pay.

So far this year $5,500 has been collected in poll taxes and $4,200 in road taxes. The total collected last year was approximately $13,000 for poll taxes and $7,000 for road taxes. People are still coming in with their money, however. The urgency of making payments early is emphasized by city hall officials. The voters' list opens on October 1, and

Forty Per Cent Lower Than Last Year

With Saturday the last day on which ratepayers can pay their taxes without facing a penalty charge, and the opening day of the city's annual tax sale of property, the treasury department has been kept busy all week taking in collections, including consolidated arrears and arrears in taxation, to save parcels of land being put up for sale.

So busy has the city treasury department been this week that Mr. Edwin Smith, treasurer, was unable to give any detailed information as to the amount of taxes collected so far this year. Only after the rush is over will the tabulations be made.

Ratepayers have been besieging the City Hall since Monday to get their taxes paid before the penalty charge comes into force. It is fully expected that the collections this year will surpass those of last year by a large figure. Payments of ten and fifteen year consolidated arrears have been made in increased numbers this year, while people are paying up their arrears of taxes so that their property will not be placed on the market.

Approximately 465 parcels were to have been put up for sale on Saturday, but no fewer than 150 people have come into the office since Monday and paid up their taxes to hold their property off the market. This brought the total of tax sale property down to 315 yesterday, which is a forty per cent decrease as compared with last year. The total, however, is expected to be further reduced before the sale opens at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

In order to facilitate ratepayers desiring to save the penalty charge on late tax payments, the city treasury department will be kept open until 9 o'clock Friday night. After 1 o'clock on Saturday all taxes paid will bear a penalty charge.

TWO-YEAR TERM IS OPPOSED HERE

Realtors Say It Is Not in City's Interests to Change Tenure of Mayor From One Year

The Victoria Real Estate Board, at its luncheon session yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce Cafe, reaffirmed its opposition to the two-year term for mayor proposal.

In introducing the matter, ex-Alderman David Leeming stated that the Union of British Columbia Municipalities would shortly be holding its annual convention at Nanaimo, and believed that a proposal against the two-year term should be forwarded to that party.

"If we have a good mayor, we will re-elect him; if we haven't, we won't want him. Why extend the term of a mayor from one to two years?" Mr. Leeming said.

The Board then unanimously adopted the following resolution: "That, in the opinion of this Real Estate Board of Victoria, the one-year term for mayor remain as heretofore, it not being in the interests of the City of Victoria that any change should be made."

"Further, that before a request for a change to a two-year term is placed before the British Columbia Legislature, the citizens and voters of Victoria should express their approval or otherwise, by referendum."

Secretary Hubert Lethaby was instructed to send copies of this resolution to the British Columbia Legislature, the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, the Mayor and City Council, the Real Estate Board of Vancouver, and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Man Pays Back Taxes to Make Voters' List

What price votes?
One Victorian has paid dearly for the privilege of expressing his opinion in an official way at the next civic election. Discovering that payment of the road and poll tax to the city was compulsory and that a non-property holder could not secure a vote without making payment, a man walked into the city treasury department yesterday and paid over to the cashier thirty-five dollars, which included this year's tax and the taxes for past four years which he had neglected to pay.

So far this year $5,500 has been collected in poll taxes and $4,200 in road taxes. The total collected last year was approximately $13,000 for poll taxes and $7,000 for road taxes. People are still coming in with their money, however. The urgency of making payments early is emphasized by city hall officials. The voters' list opens on October 1, and

INVESTMENT TRUSTS

SEATTLE, Sept. 28.—A review of the growth of investment trusts in America was contained in a report presented before the Investment Bankers' Association of America in convention here today by Charles D. Dickey of Philadelphia.

Dickey asserted there were ninety-five investment trusts in America at the present time, with combined assets of about $400,000,000. He traced the growth of this form of organization for investment in this country and Great Britain, and voiced a word of caution against possible abuse of public confidence by the unscrupulous.

"The immediate problem that confronts us here in America is whether this form of investment—comparatively new to us—is going to continue to grow on sound and serviceable lines," he said, "as it has in Great Britain or, having achieved a certain amount of success, at the start, is it going to get out of hand and become a playground for not only incompetent, but dishonest promoters."

Janet Smith Sequel

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28.—Trial of the action rising out of the abduction and incarceration of Wong Fong Sing did not proceed in Supreme Court today and indications are that the last has been heard of the case.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Amy C. Walker, claimed $3,653 compensation for damage to her house in Point Grey and depreciation of its value, occasioned, she alleged, by the confinement there for forty-two days of the Chinese houseboy. He was then suspected of implication in the death of Janet Smith, but the grand jury subsequently exonerated him.

The defendants were Point Grey officials, including Reeve J. A. Paton. Notice of discontinuance of the trial is to be filed by the plaintiff's undertaking bnh bnh gfr kwk abisgk on the Point Grey defendants undertaking to make a substantial payment to Mrs. Walker, according to her counsel. The cost of repairs were estimated at $653.

FEDERAL AID FOR ROAD WORK URGED

Federal aid in road construction and the matter of a non-partisan highway board will be taken up directly with the Minister of Public Works, it was decided at the recent provincial meeting of the Automobile Club of British Columbia.

Both these issues, which are considered of major importance by the club, have been under consideration for some time, and it was thought at the meeting that a more thorough understanding of these problems would result from a conference with the head of the department ministerially concerned.

Surveyors May Locate Logging Road to Bay

DUNCAN, Sept. 27.—For the past ten days surveyors have been busy around the north shore of Cowichan Bay and along the banks of the Cowichan River in the close vicinity of Duncan for the purpose of locating, it is said, another logging railway to provide an outlet for the timber west of Duncan. Great interest has been aroused on the part of residents in the area affected, but no information is being given out as to the parties interested in the project.

As far as could be learned yesterday this survey is independent of the operating companies using Cowichan Bay as a booming ground from Cowichan Lake. For some time it has been suggested to the large logging concerns which either bring their logs to tidewater mills or to the coast for booming, that they should support a privately owned logging railway from the lake, but as far as is known in Victoria they have not acceded to the suggestion.

COURT YIELDS TO MAN WHO BECAME DRUG ADDICT IN HOSPITAL

Victim Begs Wife to Sign Serious Charge and Kisses Her Good-Bye on Leaving the Dock

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—Waldemar Neuman, aged forty, newspaper editor, who was a victim of a drug addiction since he suffered his wound, implored Judge Cusson recently to send him to the penitentiary for two years after he had been sentenced to a one-year term at Bordeaux for threatening and neglecting his family. On his own request a more serious charge was laid and the two-year sentence to St. Vincent de Paul was issued.

The wife of the prisoner testified he threatened her with death on September 5, and attacked her with a hunting-knife, shouting "I will kill you and your children." His young daughter said he had contributed nothing to the support of the household for months, and left his wife and children in continual want, while he spent his money on drugs. Haggard and trembling, the ex-soldier stood in the prisoner's dock and heard the evidence against him. He denied little. Nelson told the court he was horribly wounded in Flanders and acquired the drug habit after becoming accustomed to morphine injections during his hospital treatment.

Judge Cusson found him guilty. "I have deep sympathy with you, I realize that you are a victim of the war. My duty is to help you and your family and I consider it necessary to send you to jail for one year. That is the maximum sentence."

But when the Bench pronounced these words, the one-time soldier at first appeared satisfied. He was being led to the cells when he suddenly turned back and faced the court once more. "Did you say one year in Bordeaux?" he inquired. When the answer came to him in the affirmative he wept copiously and, through his sobs, asked: "Won't you please send me to St. Vincent de Paul for two years?"

Judge Cusson told the prisoner it was impossible to impose more than a one-year term on the indictment, but suggested that a new complaint could be laid, charging him with a more serious offence. Nelson appealed to his wife for a new complaint and thus enable him to spend two years in the penitentiary.

WIFE SIGNED COMPLAINT

The court was accordingly adjourned while officials puzzled themselves as to what new charge could be laid against the man. After elaborate consultation of the criminal code, a complaint charging him with "attempted assault" was filed out and signed by Mrs. Nelson.

Judge Cusson then returned to the Bench and court was resumed. The new charge was laid. "What is your opinion, a trial before Judge and jury, or Judge alone?" the Bench asked in the formal way. "All I want is a two-year sentence in St. Vincent de Paul," the wounded soldier replied.

When the sentence was pronounced Nelson thanked the Bench warmly. "Can't I go immediately?" he pleaded. The court assured him he would be removed to the penitentiary within a day.

His next request was that he be allowed to kiss his wife before leaving. She went to the dock and they embraced.

"Just as soon as the medical authorities at the penitentiary pronounce you cured of the drug habit," the Bench told him as he left the dock. "I will ask the Attorney-General to give an order for your release. I have no desire to punish you."

Nelson left Montreal in the second year of the war, and was transferred to another battalion overseas. He was seriously wounded in the stomach and was not at first expected to recover. A major operation was necessary and he recovered.

POLICE WANT GUNS THAT WILL SHOOT

CANTON, Sept. 27.—Tang Yin-wah, chief of police, feels the necessity of arming his men with up-to-date weapons. The robbers with whom the police have to fight so frequently carry the most modern and efficient type of revolvers, while oftentimes the police officer is unable to get his man because his own weapon refuses to shoot. There are no funds on hand available for the purchase of new revolvers and rifles, and it is for this reason that Chief of Police Tang has announced a month's rent tax to be paid by all landlords, equal to one-tenth of the monthly rent.

WOMAN RULES OVER ISLAND

No Automobiles, No Moving Pictures, No Taxes Where She Holds Sway

MONTREAL, Sept. 26.—Daughter of an old world feudal seigneurie, Miss Douce Beaumont, who is a guest at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel for a few days, has come to Canada "just to see what it is all like." She is a daughter of Mrs. Sybil Beaumont, who inherited the seigneurie of Sark on the death of her father, the late Lord Beaumont. Although Sark is one of the Channel Islands, it is independent of them, its seigneurs being responsible directly to the King and the Privy Council and holding their rights under a charter granted by Queen Elizabeth to Helder de Carteret, of Jersey.

The land is held, Miss Beaumont explained, in feudal tenure by forty tenants who pay a ground rent in kind to her mother. Twice a year Mrs. Beaumont holds a Court of Chief Pleas, combining the legislative and judicial functions of the island in this one institution. In matters of justice, Mrs. Beaumont sits alone, but each of the forty tenants has a vote on questions regarding the general welfare of the island. The law is Anglo-Norman. "We have no taxes and we are the only country in the world without a national debt," explained Miss Beaumont.

FARMS PAY TAXES

Living on the land of the forty tenants are some 600 peasants who owe labor and rent to the tenants, and who have no voice in the affairs of the island. All farms pay taxes to the seigneurie. An amusing due is the "pouliche," a tax under which "La Dame de Sark," as the old French title of the lady of the seigneurie goes, receives one live fowl in respect of every chimney of her tenants' houses. Fishing and agriculture are the two interests of the tiny domain in the stormy channel.

A question recently discussed at the court, and staunchly turned down, was the advisability of allowing motor cars on the island. With out motors and without a town, Sark has no garage, and no cinema, and it has no transport other than carter. But it has a harbor, called Creux, said to be the smallest harbor in the world, and situated in a rocky inlet among its cliffs and caves.

Only two of the forty tenants are English, the other inhabitants being French peasants who have been able to acquire their land from the seigneurie. The French which is spoken is the old Norman French of the Domesday Book.

A MODERN GIRL

But the young daughter of this little mediaeval world is very decidedly a chic daughter of the twentieth century! With an interesting sort of prettiness she combines the easy charm of English poise and a sparkling brightness which does not belie the French title suggested by her old Channel Island name. Douce, she is proud of it. Her father, Dudley Beaumont, an officer in the Gloucestershire Regiment, died during the war. Miss Beaumont is very proud of Sark and its quaint traditions, and she has a keen interest, too, in the welfare of her mother's domain, her own special hobby in agriculture being dairying. Her school days were spent in France. Just now she is eager for impressions of this continent, which against her unique background and with her own interest in people and ways, promise to be decidedly interesting.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—most of us have some. Any part of the body as quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of mercuric iodine from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a bit, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pimples and pustules blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of mercuric iodine and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

SUMAS CLOVER SUFFERED LOSS

MR. A. D. PATERSON BELIEVES HALF A MILLION DOLLARS IN SEED PRODUCED

Unseasonable Rains, However, Caused Heavy Depletion in the Amount to Be Derived

Mr. A. D. Paterson, M.P.P. for Delta, was in the city yesterday on business connected with the departments of the Government.

Mr. Paterson, in speaking of the weather conditions that have prevailed on the Lower Mainland during the latter part of the harvest, says that the crop, thanks to the favorable conditions that have prevailed lately, has now been quite well saved.

The last two days has brought heavy rains again but for the most part the grain has all been taken care of. There had been considerable loss to the farmers, however, by the unexpected wet weather just at a time when the grain was in condition for leaving the field. This loss followed the added labor that was necessary in opening the grain up to the air again and the loss of the grain itself through shelling.

In this connection the member for Delta says that the unseasonable weather conditions have resulted in a very serious loss to the province over what would have been derived from the clover crop on the Sumas reclaimed lands. He gives the opinion that under normal conditions there would have been derived from this area in the clover seed alone half a million dollars this year had conditions not interfered with the situation.

Anticipating the danger of being caught in a late season Mr. Paterson said that early in the summer season was taken to cut the clover while it was still short. This allowed the second crop, which is the one that is used of necessity in the case of red clover, for purposes of getting seed, to ripen fairly early.

Before it was harvested, however, the rain came and there was a fresh growth of clover shot up from the base of the plants with the result that the waste in harvesting and drying the crop preparatory to threshing was heavy.

There will be a large yield, he says, but nothing like what it would have been under better conditions. The troubles that were encountered in getting the Sumas clover crop harvested and threshed has been encountered elsewhere in the West, not only in Canada but also in the United States, so that there is the prospect ahead that clover will advance in price.

Mr. Paterson says that more attention is being given now to the sheep industry among the farmers. In his own case he tells of the excellent returns that are being derived. Lambs that had been carried over for one year and which had not acquired any fat except what they gathered themselves, had brought a price of over $20 each. He is of the opinion that farmers might well give added attention to this branch of farming.

Japanese Girl Uses Airplane To Go to School

TOKIO, Sept. 26.—Deciding to take the risk of being dubbed a modern girl, ten-year-old Miss Fumiko Oka, a fourth form pupil of the Temman Elementary School, Osaka, flew from Tokyo to school on completing her vacation spent with relatives in the capital.

Wishing to be with her family as long as possible, the little schoolgirl postponed her departure until it became imperative for her to make a hurried departure for Osaka if she wished to be in time for the reopening. She therefore hopped on board one of the regular air mail machines which left Tachikawa at 8:50 o'clock Monday morning and arrived, smiling, at Osaka at 11:55, being met by anxious parents and friends.

She stated that she enjoyed the trip immensely and that it was much cooler up in the air than in Tokyo or Osaka. The air appeared to hold no terrors for her, but maybe she was a little concerned lest the police refer to her as another one of these modern girls.

World-Famous Stories

THE FAIRY WIFE

By GOETHE

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1749-1832, is beyond doubt the outstanding name in German literature. He was a successful lawyer as well as author, and also something of an artist and scientist. Among his most famous works are "Faust," "Wilhelm Meister," and "The Sorrows of Young Werther." The present story has been entitled "The New Melusine," because Melusine was the name of a fairy in French lore who became a serpent every Saturday night from the waist down. Her husband lived happily with her, according to the story, until he intruded on her privacy one Saturday night—after that she had to leave him.

One evening, as I was entering a small inn, a handsome carriage with four horses rattled up close behind me. I turned and saw a young lady alone, without maid or other attendants. I hastened to open the door for her, and inquired whether I could help her. As she stepped out her beauty became evident, save for a touch of sadness in her charming face.

"You may carry up that little box that is on the seat," she said. "Only be careful to hold it steady—do not swing or shake it in any way."

Alone in her room with her, she had me put the box on the table. As I took my leave I warmly kissed her hand, in the custom of the day. Indeed, she seemed well pleased with me, and invited me to dine with her.

Now, I can scarcely be blamed for making love to one so beautiful, but I got nowhere at all. She rebuffed every offer of affection. Finally, because of my persistence, she said that I should hold myself in check lest I spoil some good fortune that had come my way. I could serve her, she said, if I would be faithful to a trust.

I was to take the mysterious box and her carriage and travel ahead some distance. I must handle the box carefully. At night I must put it in a room by itself and never disturb it until ready to proceed with the journey. She gave me a key which would lock any door so that no other key could open it. With this I was to insure the privacy of that strange box.

I promised, if she would kiss me.

She did, and from that moment I was her slave, to do as she might command. As we parted she gave me a purse—it would never be empty, she said, as long as I was faithful to my trust.

Reaching a city, where my fair one had promised to meet me, I was so lonesome that I gave way to an impulse to gamble. My purse became exhausted. I returned to my inn, where I had left the box in a room by itself, wishing to see my beloved. At last I heard soft sounds in the room with the box, and lo! she came out and joined me, more beautiful than ever.

She pardoned me for yielding to temptation, but said that it negated another expectation into the world before we could both be happy. She gave me more gold—she said, if I would only let her leave me by retiring within the room where the box was—the same box that I took with me on my journey the next day.

Temptation, however, again waylaid me. My money ran out. While living a gay life with new acquaintances I got into a quarrel over a woman. I was taken to my quarters half dead with various wounds.

When alone in my bed the door of the room with the box again opened, and in came my fair one. I was angry, because I half felt that she had put temptation in my way. I had even, in my heart, repudiated my vow to her, and had determined to open that box in the hope that it might contain valuable jewels. I told her that she should not leave me so mysteriously—that she must be my beloved, or I would rather die, and so saying I ripped off my bandages. But I was wholly healed.

She was my sweetheart in earnest then, and for a time we were very happy. She traveled with me, and the box went with us. I always took care of the box, though neither of us mentioned it. So we lived for many days, and then she disappeared. Being more used to her strange ways, I went, on without her—taking the box, and noting that my supply of cash remained undiminished.

Then one dark night I was startled. The carriage was very dark, as I traveled onward with the box, and I noticed a chink of light in the mysterious box. Unable to restrain the impulse, I peered through the crack—I found myself looking into a room brightly lighted, and furnished with much taste and magnificence. An open fire seemed to be burning, near which stood an armchair. Then, from the side which I could not see, there came a young lady reading a book—she was my wife! For we had been married, as I wished.

I was amazed and terrified but could think of no explanation. After some time, my wife reappeared to me, as usual, in full human size. I remembered what I had heard of nixies, and she noticed the lack of warmth in my welcome. "You have seen me, meanwhile," she reproached me, "and you know the situation in which I find myself at certain periods. Your happiness and mine is thereby interrupted. I must leave you and I know not whether I shall ever see you again."

I prevailed upon her, however, and decided that it were far better to have her dwindle in size now and then than to have a woman for wife who became a giantess at such times. So our happiness continued, only I was warned never to think of her strange situation with reproach—and I must avoid wine and anger like a pestilence.

My wife was so beautiful and talented that she attracted many friends. Some of them were men—harmless enough, and yet I allowed myself to be jealous. Then, one night, I overstepped myself, drank too much, and made adverse, incautious remarks. When my wife tried to stop me, I said: "Water is for nixies!"

This time she was to leave me in earnest. First she explained to me that the tiny size was her natural shape, for she was of a race of dwarfs—one of the oldest races in the world, she said. They had been shrinking in size, however, and might vanish altogether except that, from time to time, a royal princess of their line went out into the world, and took him back with her to invigorate the blood of the dwarfs and save them from extinction. She had chosen me, and I had proved unworthy of the trust.

I was told that she gained her human size by means of a magic ring. The tiny palace in the box was made for her, in which she had to resume her dwarfish shape at intervals.

I went with her to a ravine in the woods where she was to rejoin her people. At the last moment I could not bear to leave her. I asked to be taken, with her.

To be brief, I was taken into the tiny kingdom by some magic unknown to me. I assure you that I often marvel now, as I think of it, at those wonders of that small world. For a time I remained there happily enough, and seemed to please my wife's royal parents.

But I grew restless—and I had the magic ring with which I could resume my human size. When I finally was able to use this power I was wise enough to step out of doors. My figure shot upwards with such violence that I fancied I really struck the sky, and in any case would have broken through the dome of our Summer palace, nay, would have destroyed the entire pavilion with my rude clumsiness.

So there I stood again, certainly so much the bigger, but, as I considered, also much more foolish and helpless. I found the box by my side, and in my purse, instead of money, a key to the box. Inside there was a small reserve fund which set me on my way. I still hope I may have a better explanation of those strange adventures some day, but so far as I know now all is as I have related.

"Use Rinso," say washing machine makers

Cleaner, brighter, whiter clothes—this safe, easy way

No rubbing! Away with the old-fashioned wash-day! The hours upon hours of steamy toil—rubbing, scrubbing, boiling! And at the end of the day—red hands, aching back, frazzled nerves!

Rinso has changed all that. Now you just soak and rinse—and your week's wash is whiter than you've ever seen it. Everything's clean and sweet and out on the line hours earlier.

Rinso does all the work for you. It gently loosens the most ground-in dirt—so that it floats away in the rinse. Just the most soiled parts—cuffs, edges—need a light rub to come snowy.

Use Rinso in your washer for whiter, cleaner clothes. The makers of eleven leading machines recommend it. Will not hurt clothes or hands, as it contains no acids, bleach or harsh chemicals.

For a better, easier, quicker wash—try Rinso.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

The popularity of the two and three-piece costumes for sports and street wear has once more brought an important place to the blouse and sweater.

This type of sweater with the round neck and straight lines is particularly good for sports costumes. It can be worn with jackets and jumpers and the universally popular pleated skirt. Diagonal stripes in contrasting colors lend a novel note.

To wear with the Fall suit a crepe de Chine blouse is exceedingly smart. Fine tucks on the shoulder and cuffs, as well as horizontally on the bodies, with a flat bow of the material on the shoulder, are the only trimmings.

PRETTY WEDDING CELEBRATED HERE

Miss Betty Bridges Becomes Bride of Dr. Stanley Miles at Evening Ceremony

A pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at Christ Church Cathedral, Very Rev. C. S. Quantin, Dean of Columbia, officiating, when in the presence of many friends, Miss Betty Louie Bridges, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bridges, Cowichan Street, was united in matrimony to Dr. Stanley Frederick Miles, son of Mrs. George Miles, Stanley Avenue. The church was decorated with a profusion of lovely flowers, the bride and groom standing beneath an arch of chrysanthemums, asters and greenery.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful gown of white crepe-back satin, fashioned in bouffant style, with a deep hem of lace and a lace yoke. The skirt was ornamented with clusters of pearls, and the filmy wedding veil, was caught to her head with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley.

Two bridesmaids, Miss Madge McCallum and Miss Lilla Pitzer, wore similar robes of style, of canary yellow and mauve respectively, with mohair hats to match their frocks. They carried bouquets of pale yellow and mauve chrysanthemums. Little Miss Peggy Stanley was a charming flower girl, in a frock of shell pink crepe de Chine, with a wreath of tiny roses in her hair. She carried a basket of sweet peas and roses. Dr. Charles B. Miles was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Alan McKee and Mr. Phil Stevenson.

During the signing of the register, Miss Vivien Colbert sang "Because."

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Bridges, in a gown of champagne crepe de Chine and hat to match, and Mrs. Miles, in a becoming gown with black hat, assisted the young couple in receiving their guests. A three-tier wedding cake topped with orange and white icing, and a place of honor on the supper table, which was attractively arranged.

The bride and groom left on the midnight boat for Vancouver, en route by motor to Los Angeles, where they will spend their honeymoon. For traveling the bride wore a mauve crepe de Chine dress with a canary georgette close-fitting hat and a handsome seal skin coat. On their return Dr. and Mrs. Miles will reside at 1322 Stanley Avenue.

Among the many wedding presents was a handsome mantel clock from the bride's associates at the B.C. Telephone Company.

WARD ONE ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Annual Meeting Is Addressed by Mr. D. B. Plunkett, President of Victoria Conservative Association

The annual meeting of Ward One Conservatives was held last evening in the rooms of the association, Campbell Building. The officers elected were: Chairman, Mr. A. R. Colby; secretary, Mr. James Wilson; representatives on the central executive, Messrs. G. Clarkson, J. McPhee and Mrs. Sinnott, Sr.

Following the transaction of the business before the meeting Mr. D. B. Plunkett, president of the Central Association, spoke briefly. He conveyed to the meeting the regret of Major A. Lyons, M.P., for being unable to be present, having been called out of the city on business.

Mr. Plunkett thanked the members of the ward for the support that had been given him during the year.

He called attention to the evidence that the Liberals were going to take advantage of the fact that many Conservatives would be desirous of attending the national convention in Winnipeg, and were likely to call on the by-election in Nelson at that time.

Mr. Plunkett declared himself of the opinion that half of the legislation that was passed was not properly considered. He was of the opinion that it would be to the advantage of the country if it were required that no law should be passed by the Legislature unless it had been allowed to lie over until a second session for further thought. If such a course had been taken he felt sure that the Legislature would never have passed an Old Age Pensions Act that would give only $20 a month to the beneficiary under it. While an old age pension was desirable, that amount was altogether inadequate.

He also pointed to the condition under which a small storekeeper, although he might not have more than $150 of a turnover, would have to pay a tax of $2 to the province, whether the creditors were paid or not.

Mr. Plunkett believed that it might be necessary to have compulsory registration of voters. There were too many who declined to show interest in their country.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The purchase of men's pajamas by young women has become an important factor in the pajama business, according to the general sales manager of a New York nightwear concern. He said that young women were buying men's pajamas because the garments were ideal for lounging and smoking purposes.

"The feminine demand for men's pajamas is especially noticeable in towns where young women's colleges are located," the sales manager continued. "The trend is country-wide in scope, however. The situation has reached the point where manufacturers are producing men's pajamas in colors which are especially designed to please women purchasers. For example, pajamas are being made in black and white, and in women's apparel. One model for the Fall has a black collar, black facing and a black belt."

ROSH HASHANAH RITES CONCLUDE

Jewish New Year Services Ended Last Evening With Sounding of the Ram's Horn

VISITING RABBI FROM LONDON

Mr. Jack Levy, recently arrived from London, England, last evening concluded the services in connection with the observance here of Rosh Hashanah, or the Jewish New Year. Although he returns to Vancouver today, he will give his services here also for the Day of Atonement, which starts at sunset next Wednesday evening, and lasts until sunset the following day. This observance will complete the atonement season in the Jewish calendar, a season which always begins a week prior to the New Year. The Day of Atonement is a twenty-four-hour fast.

The special feature of the Rosh Hashanah or New Year's Day is the sounding of the ram's horn, the horn used on this occasion by the rabbi as one signifies the old and the new land from Jerusalem by the chief rabbi, and brought from England to Canada by Mr. Levy.

Addresses were given morning and evening both yesterday and the day before, Mr. Levy's first sermon being on the subject of "Tradition," in which he emphasized the necessity for the continuity of the Jewish practices, despite environment and assimilation of the Jews in Western Canada. The verse used by the acting rabbi in connection with his discourse was, "By nature we are what we are, and by nature we are what we make ourselves, despite heredity and environment." His second address was on the subject of "Penitence." It was necessary, he said, for the faithful to repent during the new year if they would in absolute faith on the Day of Atonement. The Jewish conception of penitence was defined in the three words of a famous prayer recited on the New Year, this commencing: "Prayer, penitence and charity can avert the Almighty's fatal decree of condemnation in the world hereafter." Mr. Levy spoke again last evening, giving an outline of the prayers recited during the New Year. These showed, he indicated, that a man's actions in the world determined the mode of his death.

Next week's observance, which brings the Season of Atonement to an end, will again include as part of its ritual the blessing of the ram's horn, this ceremony marking the termination of the twenty-four-hour fast on Thursday at sunset. The ram's horn (shofar) is sounded on two notes, one denoting a sob, the other denoting hysteria, the rabbi of old maintaining that these two notes would be found in any penitent's plea for forgiveness. The notes afterwards became also symbolic of the two types of prayer. Ceremonies and rites are the heart and soul of the Jewish religion, Acting Rabbi Levy maintains. He himself is an orthodox minister, and belongs to a family noted for the number of its rabbis. His grandfather held a position in London, England, for fifty-two years under the chief rabbi of the British Empire, and all his four sons were ordained Jewish ministers. There are some rabbis in every branch of the family today, and two of Mr. Jack Levy's uncles hold important positions in metropolitan Jewry in London.

Although Victoria's synagogue is the oldest church in Victoria, the site of Temple E-Manuel being an original Crown grant from England, the Jewish community in this city is relatively small owing to death and migration of its people. However, during the past few months the congregation has made notable growth, and the hope is entertained that it will shortly be in such flourishing state that it can afford to support a rabbi of its own permanently. In the meantime Mr. Levy, who is at present attached to the synagogue in Vancouver, will periodically come to Victoria to conduct services. His special interest, he told The Colonist last evening, is the Jewish youth of Canada. The question is of vital interest to Canadian Jewry at the present time. His observations during his trip across Canada had indicated to him the need for some reorganized methods in approaching the Jewish youth of the country. His personal hobby is the literary society movement and the furthering of youth education. Better opportunities for this were offered in the old countries of Europe where the population was more continuous and towns closer together. Here, particularly in Western Canada, the towns are far apart, and there is no local autonomy in Jewry. Closer co-operation between the Jewish youth would overcome this in some degree; among the benefits which this would bring being the sharing of libraries and lecturers.

At the present time Mr. Levy is official secretary of the Jewish School in Vancouver, where between two and three hundred children receive tuition daily after regular school hours, in Biblical subjects. The school has been conducted by the Synagogue in Vancouver for several years.

Crew Digs for Two Days; No Sign of Bodies

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28.—Despite two days of steady digging by a crew of seventy-five men, the bodies of N. J. Macleod and D. S. Poole, carried to their death in the landslide Monday evening at Cottonwood Flats, near Blue River, had not been located at a late hour tonight. It is thought the disaster was caused by rains loosening the mountain slide. So large is the slide, it is stated, that it may be some time before the bodies can be located.

Short talks on the subject were also given by Mr. Milne, of the Saanich School Board; Mrs. Beckwith, and Messrs. Pemberton, Kinsman and Hisecks. Mrs. Michael, niece of Kenneth Mackenzie, was also present. She was one of the pupils at the old school, and has many interesting tales of old days here. FIRE ATTACKS LUMBER STOCK

Fine Effort by Firefighters Enables Valuable Property to Be Saved From Flames at Qualicum

QUALICUM BEACH, Sept. 28.—A fire which broke out in the drying kiln at the Wilson Lumber Co.'s plant, traveled rapidly to the piles of lumber, assisted by a west wind soon a high mass of flames lit up the countryside. The Wilson Lumber Co.'s mill is situated about three-quarters of a mile from the townsite and residential area of Qualicum Beach. There was about four million feet of lumber between the outbreak and the main mill, and it seemed a forlorn hope to expect to save anything, but a band of willing workers went at it in a business-like manner, and despite the totally inadequate supply of water, they managed to save about two million feet of lumber, and the mill.

A heavy rain the previous day just dumped down the piles of lumber sufficiently to give the firefighters a chance to save anything.

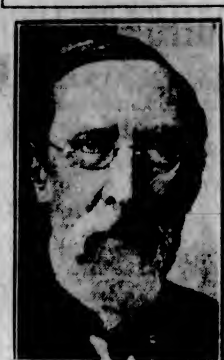

VICTORIA MAN SECURES CONTRACT FOR SIDEWALKS

DUNCAN, Sept. 27.—At a meeting of the City Council held last evening contracts were awarded to Mr. T. P. MacDonald, of Victoria, for the construction of concrete sidewalks on seven city streets, aggregating one and a half miles in length. The contract price was $10,000. The tenders opened varied greatly, ranging up to nearly $24,000. The streets affected are Trunk Road, Festubert Street, Queens Road, Ypres Street, Beaufort Road, Canada Avenue and Holmes Street.

The Council accepted with thanks a gift from H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, of a number of peony plants for the City Hall gardens.

In spite of the failure of a similar attempt many years ago, an effort is to be made in New Zealand to cultivate flax, of which the famous Irish linen is manufactured, the project being backed by the government.

THIS is a message of Hope—an assurance of better health—for the weak, ill-nourished person who stands in peril of Tuberculosis.

Are you willing for your own sake, or the sake of someone very dear to you, to follow these simple suggestions?

To Avoid Tuberculosis

Recognize that Tuberculosis is preventable and curable, if combative measures are taken early.

That patent medicines and "quick cures" not only do no good but actually delay the real cure.

That a qualified physician can quickly detect Tuberculosis and prescribe treatment which may check the disease at the very start.

That Tuberculosis of the lungs is in reality a grim battle between hordes of germs and the protecting hosts of living cells which form the lining of the lungs. A healthy person can win the contest—in fact he is winning it every hour.

That you can strengthen the system to resist the disease if you live as much as possible in the sun, shine, breathe fresh air, avoid overwork and eat nourishing food.

To Cure Tuberculosis

If you have a chronic cough with a failing appetite and loss of weight and notice symptoms which you do not understand, go at once to your family physician, and get his opinion. At this stage of the disease the greatest danger is the danger of delay.

Change of climate is not always necessary. In the hospitals for treating Tuberculosis hundreds of people are cured each year or have their lives greatly prolonged. They receive proper medical treatment, plenty of rest in the pure air and learn how to build up their system to combat the disease. For the same attention, you will have to pay no more than you can afford.

Don't leave your health to chance. Let a doctor examine your physical condition at least once a year. Better health, longer life, greater happiness, a more whole-souled joy in living will be your rewards.

OREGON COYOTES ARE LIVING HIGH

Analysis of Stomach Content Discloses Chicken, Venison, Turkey and Pork

The best evidence of what species of wild animals or birds feed upon is found in their stomachs. The stomach contents of 4456 coyotes in Oregon convicted them of feeding almost wholly on useful domestic and wild birds and animals. In these stomachs were found parts of cattle, horses, sheep, swine, turkeys, chickens, wild game and deer, antelope, jack rabbits, chipmunks, ground squirrels, ground hogs, fish, frogs and reptiles, aggregating the destruction of 4,921 animals. Besides the coyotes there were 442 bobcats, one wolf, two mountain lions and thirty-eight bears, according to the American Game Protective Association. The predatory animal work of that state is done in co-operation between the United States Biological Survey, the State Livestock Sanitary Board and the State Game Commission with the assistance of the Livestock Association. Similar co-operative arrangements are in effect in other states of the West in predatory animal control work.

To Australia

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—Keith V. Anderson, Australian aviator, arrived here today from Hawaii, where he arranged for the use of a field on which to land and take off on his proposed flight from the United States to Australia some time next month. Anderson's companions are expected to be Charles T. P. Uihm, navigator and organizer of the flight; another navigator whose identity has not been revealed, and Kingdon Smith, pilot and commander of the flight. Smith is at the Boeing aircraft factory in Seattle, installing extra gasoline tanks in the large tri-motored Peking plane to be used for the flight.

TROUT MUST HAVE COVER

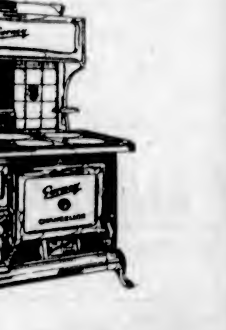

Shade of Streams Necessary to Protect From Sun—Plants In-stream Necessary Insect Food

Trout need vegetation along their native streams as much as the various species of game birds and animals need cover and for much the same reason. The small insects upon which these fish feed are only to be found in waters where there is a certain amount of vegetation. That is the reason why some streams in pastured lands are unsuited for trout, says a bulletin of the American Game Protective Association, since there is no natural food to be found in them. In the same way many streams and lakes which have had a large number of bass or other game fish planted in them have been ruined by the invasions of carp. The carp, being vegetarians in their diet, clean up the water plants upon which the small insects feed. The game fishes, particularly the young of these species, perish. Sportsmen who live in close proximity to good trout streams should encourage leaving brush and other shrubbery along the banks of such streams. Many excellent streams have been ruined by the destruction of the trees and brush along the banks, exposing the surface of the water to the sun. Trout fishermen all know of streams, formerly prolific, which now yield only very few fish simply because the trees along the banks have been removed. Instead of being clear and cold the water is muddy and warm, being exposed to the rays of the sun.

Tree Planting Record

During the past Spring tree planting period 31,864,175 trees from the New York state nurseries were planted in that state, says a bulletin of the American Game Protective Association. The fall plantings will bring the total for the year up to twenty-five million trees. Plantings on state lands numbered nearly three million trees, while cities, villages, counties, towns and schools took another three million. Individual concerns, including railroads, took over two million, and Boy Scouts planted 86,500 trees. It is expected that the next year's output of the state nurseries will show a corresponding increase.

Mrs. Jackson Provides Upset in Women's Golf

Uplands Player With Less Than Year's Experience Defeats Mrs. Philbrick—Miss Schwengers, Miss Wilson and Mrs. Wilding Remain

One of the greatest upsets in the history of the city women's golf championship was registered yesterday in the second round of match play at the Uplands Golf Club when Mrs. E. Jackson, Uplands, defeated Mrs. Philbrick, several-times champion, at the nineteenth hole.

The defeat of the Victoria Golf Club star came as a distinct surprise to many golfers, who considered Mrs. Philbrick one of the favorites for the title.

Two Uplands players, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Wilding, on the other hand, were the medalists, and Miss Marion Wilson, the defending champion, survived the quarter-finals and will battle in the semi-finals today.

Mrs. Jackson's win was by no means a lucky one, and one which deserves a word of praise. Mrs. Philbrick's conqueror has only been playing the royal and ancient game for the past nine months, and has shown marked talent. Her driving is remarkable, and the rest of her game is on a par with many of the veterans. The present championship is her first experience in tournament play.

A SEE-SAW AFFAIR
The round was a see-saw affair throughout and the issue was in doubt all the way. Throughout the first nine holes Mrs. Philbrick held more than a single hole advantage, and at the turn the match stood all square. Coming home the play continued as in the first nine, and at the eighteenth hole the match was still square.

Mrs. Jackson had an element of luck dropped into her play on the nineteenth. Short of the bunker to the right of the green with her second, Mrs. Jackson pitched a mashie to the green which split the pin and dropped inches away from the cup for a sure four, while Mrs. Philbrick's third was less than two feet away for what looked like a certain half in four.

With the two balls less than two feet from the cup it looked as if another hole would be necessary, but fate intervened. Mrs. Philbrick, putting first, hit her ball firmly, but an errant piece of grass drove it off the line and the truant ball lipped the cup and rolled past the hole.

Another close match was provided by Miss Schwengers and Mrs. Parry, the former winning on the eighteenth. As in the Jackson-Philbrick match, play was see-sawed throughout with Miss Schwengers entering the home stretch with a one-hole lead after Mrs. Parry's putt on the ninth had rimmed the cup and stayed on a balance.

Another great match was provided by Miss Schwengers and Mrs. Parry, the former winning on the eighteenth. As in the Jackson-Philbrick match, play was see-sawed throughout with Miss Schwengers entering the home stretch with a one-hole lead after Mrs. Parry's putt on the ninth had rimmed the cup and stayed on a balance.

THE OTHER TWO-SIDED
The other two challenges, between Mrs. Wilding and Mrs. Hutchinson and Miss Marion Wilson and Mrs. Parry, were one-sided. Mrs. Wilding established an early lead and increased it at every opening, winning 4 and 3. The Uplands champion was right on top of her game and had her wood and irons working to perfection, while her play on the greens was splendid.

Four matches were disposed of in the first flight, Monday, Sept. 28. Mrs. R. L. Pocock, Mrs. A. M. Boyd and Mrs. A. H. Tanner surviving the round.

The semi-finals will be played today in all flights, with the exception of the second, starting at 10 a.m. The final of the championship flight will be played Friday afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. Yesterday's results follow:

Armour Says Niblic Won U.S. Open Golf

"The best stroke I played on the play-off," said Tommy Armour, speaking of his victory over Harry Cooper in the 1927 United States Open, "was the niblic shot out of the rough at the twelfth hole." Cooper was "two strokes up when they came to the long twelfth, and both were in the rough to the left of the green which sloped from them and was lightning fast. Cooper caught the green but almost slipped over it into a trap. Armour's lie was none too good and a trap lay between him and the cup. In order to get a five on the hole and the Cooper, which was now a necessity, else he would have no chance for the title, Tommy had to not only lift his ball with a great deal of backspin or cut and have it fall on the green just over the trap, or else lift it over the trap. Here was a ticklish situation.

Armour opened the face of the niblic and cut across the ball so it seemed to me, striking it as his club head crossed under it from right to left, or from outside the line of flight to the inside, a pitch similar to the one Vardon taught Americans on his tour of this country in 1913 when, among other things, he introduced the first fast ball ever seen here. Tommy got away with the shot beautifully and held the green, getting his five with Cooper.

FRANK ALDOUS

Well-known in local soccer circles, who last year performed with the James Island eleven in the First Division. In addition to being a good football player, Aldous is quite at home on the cinder track, and has proved himself to be the class of the Island over the mile distance. Running in four races and taking three firsts and a second, the record of this lad, who is yet in his teens.

He won at Parkville, Shawanigan Lake and Victoria, and in each case was not extended. At Vancouver, he was drawn up and adopted against some of the fastest men in the country, he ran second. In the picture he is shown holding the Curtis Cup which he won at Shawanigan Lake.

HUGGINS IS CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

New York Manager Claims Long-Distance Clouting of His Proteges May Decide World Series for Them

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Long-distance clouting, one of the prime factors in the runaway race of the Yankees in the American League race, may decide the world series in their favor, is the opinion of Manager Miller Huggins.

PIRATES HAVE EDGE IN BATTING

Baseball Men Arguing Over Advantages and Disadvantages of Yankees' Coasting Down Stretch

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Long-distance clouting, one of the prime factors in the runaway race of the Yankees in the American League race, may decide the world series in their favor, is the opinion of Manager Miller Huggins.

"As a team, the Pirates may be batting a point or two higher," he said today in a discussion of pennant possibilities, based on the prospect of Pittsburgh being the National League entry, "but the Yankees have a big edge in total bases and long-distance hitting."

"I don't think there's much difference between the targets offered at Forbes' Field and the Yankee Stadium in right field, for our two big guns, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. Both are around 300 feet, but on the left field the grounds are easier to reach at the Yankee Stadium than in the Pirate stronghold."

TEAMS' AVERAGES
The comparison of extra base hitting bears Huggins out. The latest unofficial averages show the Yankees have gathered thirty-one more doubles, twenty-four more triples, and 100 more home runs than the Pirates. Here are the figures:

	Yankees	Pirates
AB	149	5,157
R	149	5,157
H	149	5,157
2b	3b	3b

HUGGINS IS CONFIDENT

Huggins doesn't expect the snap or dash in the Yankees' attack to lose any of its edge from the fact that the club has clinched the pennant on the left field. The grounds are easier to reach at the Yankee Stadium than in the Pirate stronghold. Huggins doesn't expect the snap or dash in the Yankees' attack to lose any of its edge from the fact that the club has clinched the pennant on the left field. NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Promoter Tex Rickard made a profit of $491,660 on the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago, a survey of the official attendance figures revealed today. This does not include receipts from the radio and motion pictures.

Although the number of paid admissions, 102,445, was not as large as when the fighters met in Philadelphia, the receipts were $763,450 more. The total gross receipts were $2,688,660 for the Chicago fight. Tunney received $1,000,000 and Dempsey $447,000. W. Oliver is President of Newly Formed Association—Basketball and Badminton on Programme

Officers and committees for the Anglican Athletic Association were appointed at a largely attended meeting in Christ Church Cathedral on Tuesday evening. When plans for the season's activities in badminton, basketball and other games were discussed.

Nominations of officers resulted in the following being elected: Hon. President, the Bishop of Columbia; hon. vice-president, the Dean; president, W. Oliver; vice-president, S. Hawkins; secretary, J. L. Mulqueen; treasurer, Donald Brake.

Basketball committee: Miss F. Gates, Miss McConnon, C. Cope, B. Lashmar, W. Norris. Badminton committee: Miss L. Andros, C. McConnon, Locky, Messrs. O. M. Prentice, C. Turner.

Gymnasium class committee: Miss K. Wootton, J. McAllister, D. Brake, W. Cotton.

It was decided that the executive committee should consist of the principal officers, together with a secretary for each of the major activities undertaken by the association, with power to add one person from each parish participating in the association but not represented in the list of officers.

The first meeting of the executive committee was held for Wednesday next at 7:45 p.m. in the Memorial Hall.

Among suggestions made for consideration by the executive was that the Memorial Hall gymnasium be used on Monday evening for a gymnasium class, on Thursday evening for basketball and on Saturday evening for badminton.

Conditions of membership will be graded according to age in three groups, namely: Under eighteen, eighteen to twenty-one, twenty-one and over.

The next general meeting of the association, when a schedule of games and a programme of activities for the season will be submitted by the various committees, will take place on Wednesday, October 12, at 7:45 p.m. in the Memorial Hall.

Giants Win From Phillies to Gain On Idle Leaders

Pirates Have Open Date, While Cards Are Rained Out at Cincinnati—Standing of Leading Clubs Unchanged—Pittsburgh Must Win Two Games to Cinch Pennant

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Rain and open dates caused a pause in the National League pennant scramble today. The league-leading Pirates had a recess, while the second place Cardinals were rained out at Cincinnati, leaving a margin of two games separating the two front contenders. The Giants defeated the Phillies to gain half a contest. The standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games
Pittsburgh	93	58	.616	3
St. Louis	91	60	.603	3
New York	90	61	.596	3

The Giants came to the first place in the event the Pirates lose all their games left to play, and the Cards take only two of three. The New Yorkers would have to sweep their three contests. To clinch the bunting, Pittsburgh has to come out in front in two contests providing the Cards capture all three.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—The Giants helped the Phillies to close out their home season today by wresting a 5 to 4 decision from the tailenders in ten innings. The triumph allowed the New Yorkers to continue in the pennant chase with the slim possibility of tying the leaders. Cy Williams gained an edge on Hack Wilson of the Cubs in the home-run frays by clouting, with one on base, to lead the Chicago player by one. Leach, of the Phillies, belted for the circuit in the fifth.

The Senators won thirteen out of the twenty-two games played with the Red Sox. Hadley's pitching was the deciding factor in the first game.

The Red Sox scored the few upsets in the second game by bunting five hits off Fred Marberry in the fourth inning. Braxton went to the box for the Senators in the fifth and pitched good, holding Boston to two hits.

HELEN PAGET WINS BOTH MATCHES

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—It is a well established fact that the road of a golf champion to a second title is one of the hardest that can be found, and Miss Ada Mackenzie, Toronto, found the route that she traveled today in search of her second consecutive Canadian ladies' close title, was blocked by two former winners of the title, but the defending champion was able to surmount both obstacles, only to find that she must meet the third of the previous winners in the semi-final round tomorrow.

This morning Miss Mackenzie defeated Mrs. Gordon Ferrie, of Hamilton, and then in the afternoon she won from Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, of the Toronto Golf Club. Tomorrow she tackles Miss Helen Paget, Ottawa, winner in 1925.

DORA VIRTUE BEATEN
Miss Maude Smith, Toronto, who provided one of the few upsets of the opening round, came through with another surprise today, when she defeated Miss Dora Virtue, of Montreal, who shared the honors of Monday's qualifying round with Miss Mackenzie, but in the afternoon Miss Smith was unable to hold Mrs. Maude Rosa, of the Royal Ottawa Club, a semi-finalist in 1925. Miss Marjorie Kirkham, Montreal, who was one of the surprises of the first round, accounted for Mrs. Eric Phillips, of Ottawa, and five. Her first tournament experience was concluded, however, in the afternoon round when she lost to Mrs. E. W. Whittington, Toronto.

The six matches in the lower half of the bracket came out as anticipated, but several of them produced close finishes. In the morning Miss Helen Paget, of Toronto, won from Mrs. Victor Sifton, of Toronto, four and three, and qualified to meet Mrs. Douglas Laird, of Winnipeg, in the third round. Mrs. Laird won the closest match of the two rounds in the championship, when she eliminated her clubmate, Mrs. R. K. Bearato, in the morning, one up.

New Captain of St. Andrews "Played In"

ST ANDREWS, Scotland, Sept. 28.—After performing the historic ceremony of "playing himself in" before a large gallery today while the terrace was boomed, the new captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, James Tennant Inglis, later fore up his cards in the competition for the King William the Fourth and the club gold medals. Cyril Tolley, after a series of misfortunes, rallied at the fifth and the result was a tie between A. Cave and V. Pollock, each with an 80. They will play off the tie tomorrow.

Skating Club to Organize

A meeting of the Victoria Skating Club has been called for 8 o'clock on Tuesday, October 4, for the purpose of electing officers and making plans for the coming season which will begin in November. Under the presidency of Major A. G. Piddington, the club had a very successful season last winter. Many devotees of figure skating availed themselves of the opportunity to practice the art under the favorable conditions afforded, the arena ice being reserved for the club's use during two sessions a week. While it is anticipated that practically the whole of last year's enrolment will continue their membership, a limited number of newcomers can be admitted. Anybody wishing to join should make application to the secretary, T. J. Goodlake, 1001 Broad Street.

Rugby Season Opens Back East With Many Changes in Line-Ups

Ottawa Champions Have Lost Three Stars Who Helped to Bring Victory Last Season—McGill University "Dark Horse" in Intercollegiate Race

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—"King Rugby," monarch of the field of sport during the Fall months, ascends his throne in just a few days and his subjects, the ten-year-olds worshipping on a vacant lot, or the stars of the game performing in vast stadiums, are preparing for his coming.

Throughout Eastern Canada, greatest interest centres during the Rugby season on teams in the intercollegiate, interprovincial and Ontario Rugby Football Unions. In view of their victories in Dominion championships for two successive years, and the interest attaching to their efforts to "make it three in a row," Ottawa Senators, interprovincial and Canadian champions, will again back in the line-up this Fall. The club, which swept through their regular league schedule with but one defeat—40 Argonauts—bested Balmby Beach, the O.R.F.U. champions, in the Canadian semi-final by one point margin after a heroic last period comeback, and defeated University of Toronto in valiant manner on a cold December day this year will be without three of the stars who helped them in this performance.

Joe Miller, sure-handed backfielder, who climbed to his niche in the Rugby hall of fame when his teammate, Joe Tubbman, was injured, is out of the game forever. He is now a professional hockey player. Another absentee is Harold Starr, acknowledged to be one of the best, if not the best, flying wings in the Canadian game. A leg ailment will probably keep Starr out of the game all season. "Chubby" Dunne, sterling middle wing, is the third loss the Senators must withstand. He will be with Queen's in the intercollegiate Union this year.

SEVERAL YOUNGSTERS

To offset inroads into their staff, Senators rely on Joe Tubbman, whose injured knee kept him out of the game most of last season, and several youngsters who have shown good form in drill. Also they have Earl Smith, former Colgate University star, who is said to be adapting himself readily to the Canadian game, and is likely to become a valuable grinder.

The champions have been rather slow in getting down to serious practice, but most of their stars have been keeping in condition in other sports and will not be long in finding their Rugby feet. Among the old guard who will again be with them are Charlie Lynch, their brainy quarterback; Don Young, Charlie Connell, Jimmy Humphreys, Louie Cote, Vince Currie, Tubbman, Ketchum, "Stew" Bruce McMillen, Eddie Emmerson, who was said to be through last season, but is now beginning his 17th year in the game, and is still

McGILL "DARK HORSE"

This intercollegiate Union schedule does not get under way until October 8, when McGill will journey to Toronto to meet the Blue team against Varsity. A week later Queen's get into action against McGill in Montreal.

Varsity, intercollegiate champion this season will be without the services of Walter Spivey, who has been outstanding on the Blue team for years. He has graduated, but younger men are coming up, and the coaches expect a team equal to their aggregation of last year. They will have Francis Trimble, Jack Sinclair, Young and McIntyre to choose from for their halfbacks, with a wing line that is regarded as speedy and clever. Don Carriek will be lost to them this season as he has decided not to play.

Queen's promise to be every bit as formidable as they have been for the past few years, although minus their astute coach, Billy Hughes, who resigned recently. The Tricolours have a capable substitute in Orin Carson. On the backfield will be the renowned Harry "Red" Balmby, but who will team up with him is problematical as the Tricolours have a host of promising material in training. "Chubby" Dunne, former Ottawa star, is attracting much attention in the training grind and he is certain of making the team, while several of last year's regulars, in addition to Balmby, will be in the lineup.

The "dark horse" of the intercollegiate race appears to be McGill, which has more available material on hand this season than ever before. Coach Frank Shaughnessy will coach the Crimson and the huddle system will again be used. McGill retained the nucleus of a good team from last year's regulars in St. Germaine, Little, Taylor and several others, while notable newcomer is Tremaine, star halfback with Royal Military College last season. Kritzinger, Regina halfback, has a good chance of making a place on the team.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union gets under way with its schedule on October 1, when Hamilton Tigers meet Camp Borden. The following Saturday University of Toronto meet Balmby Beach.

The O.R.F.U., with the same four teams again in operation are looking forward to a banner year. Balmby Beach, of Toronto, who have won the championship for three years in succession, are expected to encounter stouter opposition in their quest for their fourth title, as University of Toronto Seconds, Hamilton Tiger Cubs and Camp Borden, the other three teams in the Union, are expected to be considerably stronger than last year.

Balmby Beach will field almost the same lineup that went through the league season last year without defeat, and which gave Ottawa Senators such a stern battle in the play-off. Their mainstay is "Yip" Foster, the "Big Train" of local football. Camp Borden will again be led by Captain Dave Harding, while Varsity Seconds will be strengthened by new material from University of Toronto Schools. Hamilton Tiger Cubs had several stars on their team last year, who should perform much better this season, with their added experience.

JACK GUARANTEED HEARING BY BOARD

Law Requires Ex-Champion's Protest to Be Given Consideration—Flynn Blamed for Defeat

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Jack Dempsey, under the law, is guaranteed a hearing by the Illinois Boxing Commission if he desires to protest the decision which gave Gene Tunney last Thursday night's fight. Paul Pridemore, a member of the commission, said last night.

Dempsey's written protest was expected to reach the commission in time for consideration at today's regular meeting. Neither Dempsey nor Leo Flynn, his manager, has revealed on what point the protest will be based, other than the disputed count over Tunney in the seventh round.

John C. Righelmer, commission chairman, continued today to regard the fight decision as a closed issue. The rumour being spread over the city as to efforts to "ballyhoo" a third championship fight between Tunney and Dempsey.

Joe Benjamin, Pacific Coast lightweight, and long a personal friend of Dempsey, blamed Flynn for Dempsey's defeat. Jack was one week overtrained Benjamin said, and should have been rested.

DEMPSEY'S PLANS

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Lack of fighting spirit—the flaming urge to crash and batter through every obstacle in the way of regaining the heavyweight championship—is all Jack Dempsey believes can keep him from punching his way back to the title.

A few weeks of rest and recreation," Dempsey said, "and then back to the mountains to hike and rough it and wait for the urge to climb back into the ring."

"I will want to fight at least four times to prove my fitness for another shot at Tunney. I'll take on anyone—Phil Scott, the Englishman; Paulino, the Spaniard; this fellow Heene, or Sharkey again. I want these fights through the Winter season and into the Spring. Then bring on Tunney again and you can count fifty, it won't matter."

Three Swimming Titles At Stake Next Month

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—The latest Canadian amateur swimming championships will be held here on October 14. Springboard diving, the 100-yard back stroke and a 200-yard relay race are the three Dominion title events to be contested.

Entries for the events are expected from different parts of the Dominion.

Kid Moody, of Burlington, scored a technical knockout over George Baker, of Vancouver, B.C., in the second canto of the scheduled six-round semi-final.

MEASMER A GOOD SALESMAN

Measmer, the man after whom the word "measmerism" took its significance, was an unusually good talker and when he found that he could convince almost anyone, he devised a system of selling magnetic cures without the aid of magnets. The French Government was so impressed that it offered him a sum of money for the rights of his discovery. Numerous institutes were established in his name. Ex-Champion Declares Heavyweight King Better Than Given Credit For—Estelle Taylor Mistaken

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—A San Francisco theatre manager and seven of his employees were arrested here today on Federal warrants charging them with violating the Interstate Commerce Act because they were showing the Tunney-Dempsey Chicago fight films. Ten Rickenbacker theatre, which was also named in the action, and a telegraphic warrant sent to New York for his arrest.

The arrests were made under a law prohibiting transportation of fight films from one state to another. Assistant District Attorney Eugene Bennett said today that after the Government has surveyed the case further it may arrest Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey and their managers and that they might be brought here for trial.

DENIAL IS GIVEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Jack Dempsey came out last night with a flat denial of Gene Tunney's claim regarding final instructions from Referee Dave Barry in the championship bout at Chicago. "I received no warning or instructions about retreating to a neutral corner in the event of a knockdown," Dempsey told newspapermen. "I feel that I lost the decision through the fault of a referee who was not favorable to me. I knocked Tunney out and I can do it again. I want another match with him and I'm going to do my best to get it."

Dempsey repeated that he would make no protest of any kind but that his manager, Leo P. Flynn, would have a statement ready today that would throw a new angle on last-minute developments before the fighters climbed into the ring. Flynn's statement, Dempsey declared, would be in the form of a formal protest.

NO BREAKS WITH FLYNN

The former champion said there had been no break with Flynn. "Leo's contract expired with the Chicago fight," Jack said. "He will handle me in my next fight, under a new contract." Regarding Tunney's ring prowess, Dempsey had nothing but praise. "Gene is a much better fighter than he is given credit for being. He's a better fighter than Jack Sharkey, because he hits straighter and is more clever. I don't feel that I fought as well against Tunney as I did against Sharkey, however. I just could not seem to get going. I wasn't hurt much, at least not enough so that I did not know what was going on."

The Manitoba Mauler said he would keep in condition, realizing that his future in the game depended entirely on his ability to keep active.

ESTELLE SLIGHTLY MIXED

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Under the impression that her husband had knocked out Gene Tunney and regained his heavyweight title in Chicago, Estelle Taylor, movie actress, wife of Jack Dempsey, greeted the unsuccessful challenger with smiles and kisses when he returned to their apartment after the battle, says Jack Farrell, in The New York Daily News today.

Listening to the blow by blow account over the radio, the actress understood the announcer to count "eight, nine and out" over Tunney when describing the flooring of the champion in the seventh round. What the announcer said was "eight, nine and up."

At the end of the count the actress shut off the radio and proceeded to celebrate. She later greeted her husband as the victor. "Honey, it was remarkable," she said. "What was remarkable, dear?" inquired the battle-marked challenger. "Why, you won, dear, and by a knockout."

Jack, says Farrell, dropped his head on his chest and muttered: "Hec, no, honey, I lost the fight on a decision."

N. Carolina Creates State Game Refuge

The State of North Carolina recently created its first state game refuge, embracing about 20,000 acres of land in doing so, absorbed the game refuge heretofore maintained by the Federal Government in the Pisgah National Forest. Under the agreement between the State and Federal Government, according to the American Game Protective Association, the refuge is to be maintained by the state for a period of ten years subject at the expiration of that time to renewal.

This refuge is in the western part of North Carolina, adjoining the Mount Mitchell State Park as well as the Pisgah National Forest. It is in the recreational section of the Southern Appalachian Mountains. The area now contains considerable game, especially that portion which has heretofore been embraced in the Pisgah Refuge, and it is intended to build up the game supply as rapidly as possible and provide for hunting in surrounding territory. The Federal Government owns about 75,000 acres in the immediate neighborhood, which will be hunting land as soon as the supply of game becomes sufficient.

ENGLAND MAY ABOLISH TIP

Hotel and Restaurant Association Considers Substituting Ten Per Cent Tax

LONDON, Sept. 27.—A proposal to discontinue the tipping system in English hotels and to substitute for it an addition to the bills of a fixed percentage for service, may shortly come before the Councils of the Hotels and Restaurants Association. A change of this kind has been discussed on more than one occasion by the council, but the balance of opinion has so far been against the adoption of a plan which is now in general operation on the Continent. If, as is intended, the suggestion is again put forward, it will be considered seriously with a view to deciding which is the more suitable procedure, tipping or a tax of ten per cent on the customers' accounts.

Letters published in the correspondence columns of The Times have indicated that the plan works reasonably well on the Continent, and that where the service charge is added to the bill, the staff is content. The money collected from guests is shared among a much wider range of servants than would in the ordinary way receive gratuities, though the proportion which reaches the more humble members of the staff may be a very small one in comparison with that taken by the head waiter or concierge. The system has spread to the small towns and villages from the large resorts, and it is in force even in Corsica. A visitor to that island this year recalls that at one rather primitive inn, where the proprietor himself acted as porter, cook, waiter and bedroom attendant, the bill when presented included the standard ten per cent charge for service.

English hotel proprietors and managers, while conceding that the system may be admirably suited to some countries, have so far held the opinion that it would not be satisfactory here. The view was expressed recently that the ten per cent addition would be an extra tax on visitors, as the majority would continue to bestow tips on waiters and other members of the staff who had rendered special service. "The people behind the scenes in our hotels and restaurants," it was stated by one prominently associated with the industry, "are properly looked after by their employers. They get higher wages than the servants in personal contact with guests who expect and receive tips. The present system enables guests to discriminate in the distribution of gratuities. One waiter may be three times as efficient and helpful as another, and many people like to recognize special attention when it is forthcoming. With the ten per cent addition to the bill visitors would be making contributions to people they never see and know nothing about."

Notwithstanding the reluctance of the English proprietors to abolish tipping in favor of the tax, it is probable that many people using hotels and restaurants would welcome a system which would relieve them of the responsibility of deciding which servants should be tipped and on what scale the gratuities should be given. Proprietors themselves admit that, in the case of a stay of only one or two days in an hotel the tax would solve a problem which is sometimes difficult, but it is doubtful whether as a body they can at present be persuaded to sanction any general adoption of what is regarded as an experiment, the value of which on the Continent has not yet been judged after fuller experience than has yet been gained.

VANCOUVER POLICE WHOLLY ACQUITTED

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28.—Charges against Sergeant-Detective George McLaughlin and Detective D. A. McGregor, of the morality squad, were not supported and the Vancouver police officers were completely exonerated.

This was pronounced by the police commission after a secret session this morning. The commission's finding was handed out in a three-page document signed by the three commissioners, Mayor Louis D. Taylor, Alderman J. A. Garbutt and T. W. Fletcher.

"We find the charges are not supported by evidence, and that testimony given in support of the accusations was of such a character as to be wholly unconvincing."

"It was further met by a preponderance of evidence including documents and official records of the police in opposition to the charges, which rendered the accusations insupportable," the statement said.

In explaining their action in refusing to allow public hearings, the commissioners stated that it thought "no good purpose would be served by having public sessions, as much of the testimony was unfit for publication."

AUSTRALIA CUTS TAXES

Commonwealth Budget Proposes $10,000,000 for Empire Defence—Tariff Increased

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 28.—Reductions of ten per cent on income and land taxes, representing decreases respectively of $1,326,000 and $445,000, were announced by the Commonwealth treasurer, Hon. E. C. Page, in the Federal Parliament today.

The revenue and expenditures, he said, practically balance at $63,000,000. The gross debt of the Commonwealth on June 30, was $461,000,000, including the war debt of $287,000,000, which has been reduced in the past five years by $36,000,000.

The Federal Government has made loans totalling $24,500,000 to the Australian states for development purposes, dispatches stated. Proposed new legislation includes a federal housing scheme, in connection with which the Federal Government will hand over to states $20,000,000.

The Federal Minister of Customs today announced the introduction of an amendment to the tariff, increasing the intermediate and foreign duties on motor cars by five and eight per cent respectively. The British preference remains unchanged.

THRILLING STORY OF DOG LIFE TOLD

Canine Strength and Fearlessness Depicted on Screen at Columbia Today

Replete with the spirit of thrilling adventure, "The Outlaw Dog," starring Ranger, the marvel dog, is delighting audiences at the Columbia Theatre, where it is now playing. The picture opens at an exciting tempo, and maintains this high-powered action until the very last foot of the absorbing story has been unfolded on the screen. There are three breath-taking sequences which grip with intense suspense: Ranger's fight with two robbers, rescuing his master's sweetheart, and his struggle against death in a treacherous current. The dog's strength and fearlessness, combined with his remarkable intelligence and willingness to obey directions, make him the most outstanding canine actor in the movie world. His performance in this picture will be a joy to all who have seen him and to those who are fond of dogs.

"THE RED WIDOW" AT ROYAL TONIGHT

Clever Amateurs Present Snappy Musical Comedy at Local Theatre

Tonight at 8:30 the opening performance of the musical comedy, "The Red Widow," will be given at the Royal Victoria Theatre. The show will be repeated on Friday and Saturday evenings.

The cast held its final rehearsal at the Royal Theatre last evening, and everything went off without a hitch. The show, which is from the book by Channing Pollock, is replete with fine dancing numbers, good chorus work, plenty of comedy and excellent solo work.

Owing to the success which has marked the shows put on in the city by the Gyro Club there has been a tremendous demand for tickets for "The Red Widow." Practically every seat for the three nights will be taken.

The Gyro Club has succeeded in getting the finest cast it has been their privilege to enroll for any show, and with such a splendid musical comedy as "The Red Widow," they hope to mark up another niche in their career of theatrical productions.

The first act in "The Red Widow" is in the foyer of a London theatre, and the next two acts are staged in Russia, with all the thrills and frills that this nation can provide for productions of this nature.

MYSTERY FILM GIRL CREATES SENSATION

After Creating Sensation at Antipodes, Great Entertainer Appears at Local Theatre

The Mystery Film Girl, who will appear at the Dominion Theatre next week in person, picture and song, created a sensation in Australia and New Zealand, where she appeared in all the leading cities and towns prior to coming to Canada. Pluck and perseverance, plus a natural talent, has carried her a long way, and the young women of Victoria will doubtless be able to pick up a few real good pointers from her when she appears on the stage. That good looks are not essential for worldly success is the opinion of the Mystery Girl, and as proof of this contention she will attempt to quote her own experience.

Referring to the Mystery Girl, The Glasgow Herald says: "Her pictures are a work of art. Loch Onna and its environs filmed at Christmas time, include some of the finest snowscapes ever screened. The Burns country scenes will have particular appeal to Scots abroad, and the Mystery Girl sings Scottish songs. She sings them exceedingly well."

CAPITOL. Marian Nixon, who THEATRE plays the leading role in support of the favorite screen idol, Reginald Denny, in "Out All Night," now showing at the Capitol Theatre, is one of the cleverest fencers in the film colony. During the filming of her latest picture she was honored by a visit from the champion swordsman of Spain, Senor Don Juan Romero, who had just arrived in Hollywood from Madrid. He immediately invited Miss Nixon to an exhibition duel which drew many favorable comments. The specialties on the stage today include the Carlton Sisters and Mack, in a poverty presentation, which introduces several popular melodies; Aurelio Sciacqua, the Italian tenor, is delighting patrons with his very fine singing, and last but not least is Syd Barnes, the comical English monologist, who has the happy knack of showing just what pleases theatregoers most, as is evident by the applause this clever artist is re-

DOMINION A ceremonial dance THEATRE the head-hunters in the trackless African jungle is one of the extraordinary features of Warner Bros. production of "The Missing Link," starring Syd Chaplin, now showing at the Dominion Theatre. In this, his latest and greatest mirthquake, Syd starts out as a timid, temperamental young fellow who has become a down-and-out, the butt of the world's jokes and kicks. One day on the London docks things begin to happen to him, and before he realizes it he is on a liner bound for Africa as a big game hunter noted for bravery. Syd and the man who has changed things begin to him, to avoid the attentions of a girl, are on no ordinary big-game expedition, but are off to capture "The Missing Link" himself. Imagine a man the centre of a ring of black, naked savages brandishing their weapons and working themselves up to an irresponsible frenzy, the weird and monotonous thumping of tom-toms. Not a bit funny to the victim perhaps—but to the spectator, wait and see it on the screen.

PLAYHOUSE Irving Whitley, THEATRE baritone, is appearing with the Playhouse Players this week in that laugh riot, "Irish Justice." Tropical seas in storm and calm are locale of "Bitter Apples," the screen story in which the popular Monte Blue is seen as the bewildered lover and husband who knows only that his wife hates him and that he will one day be able to win her affection. The exotic Myrna Loy, previously seen with Blue as the native girl in "Across the Pacific," plays the part of the woman who wins the heart of a fellow passenger on a voyage to Southern Seas for the sake of carrying out a vow of vengeance which she and her brother have sworn against him.

TUNNEY-DEMPSY Fight Pictures at Coliseum Monday
Victoria theatregoers and fight fans will now have a chance to see that seventh round in the fight at Soldiers' Field, Chicago, on September 22, last, or rather the round that was almost fatal to Gene Tunney, who luckily weathered the storm. Just one second only in that seventh round, separated Jack Dempsey from the greatest victory of his career, and an achievement that no other ex-champion had ever attained. All this can be seen again when the pictures of this fight are shown at the Coliseum Theatre next week. In order to accommodate the large crowds that will be present, Manager G. L. Nichols will run a special matinee every day next week, thereby allowing every one a chance to see this

Miss Talmadge in Modernized Camille At Capitol Monday

Generally acclaimed as the greatest triumph of the speaking stage's foremost actresses, notably Sarah Bernhardt and Eleonora Duse, "Camille," modernized for the screen, now becomes Norma Talmadge's crowning achievement.

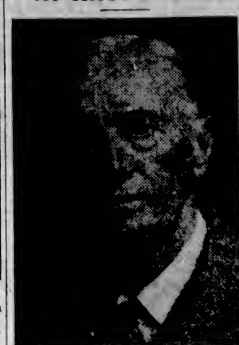

The finest screen performance of all time, "The tribute paid to Miss Talmadge by motion picture critics. Produced by Joseph M. Schenck for First National and Directed by Fred Niblo, the modern "Camille" has an unusually strong cast in support of the star. The feature, of course, is invested with all the lavishness which always marks a Norma Talmadge vehicle. The gowns worn by the star are extremely dazzling. New effects in beautiful motion picture photography are achieved by Oliver Marsh, chief cameraman during the filming of "Camille." The picture comes to town Monday to the Capitol Theatre here.

"ARABIAN NIGHTS" WILL BE PRESENTED AT CRYSTAL GARDEN

MR. LEGGE-WILLIS
With the Co-Optimal Comedy Company at Crystal Garden.

When the sedate Mr. Hummingtop disguises himself as Haroun al Raschid, the Caliph of Bagdad, he very quickly realizes the truth of the line which runs: "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." If he had remained at home in his disguise, all would have been well. But he must needs emulate the Caliph by sauntering forth into the night to relieve the suffering people and sympathize in their afflictions.

On Friday evening the Co-Optimal Comedy Company will present this typical Charles Hawtrey farce as the second of their series of Friday night concerts. Those who attended the performance of "Under False Colors," last Friday evening will require no further invitation to come again tomorrow night. They will know that this is a company of very talented artists, who have that happy faculty of choosing for their plays productions of sparkling wit and rare good-humor.

Sousa Postpones Golf and Cigarettes For Old Age's Use

Lieut.-Com. John Philip Sousa, who is now making his thirty-fifth annual tour at the head of his famous band, recently started the country by declaring that he still considered himself too young to play golf. The bandmaster declared that the ancient and honorable Scottish game might appeal to him if he ever found himself becoming decrepit, and at the same time he expected to take up cigarette smoking and tea drinking. Sousa, as a youth in his teens, was graduated from corn silk cigars to clear Havana, and he does not recall that he ever smoked a cigarette. Neither does he drink tea. Sousa smokes about a dozen cigars a day and has his cup of coffee three times a day. He still takes his exercise by riding horseback and shooting over the traps at the New York Athletic Club. One year in two he goes on a long hunting trip in South Carolina. Sousa and his band will appear for two concerts at the Arena on Monday, October 3.

The House of Rogues

By CHRISTOPHER B. BOOTH

SYNOPSIS

Philip Reynolds, "The Black Fox," King of Counterfeits, has served fifteen years in prison for counterfeiting. Three days prior to his release he and his cell-mate, Frank Padden, "Three-Fingered Frank," agreed to join forces. Padden's release is on the morrow.

John Strawn, a wealthy, middle-aged man, has purchased "The House of Rogues," which The Black Fox built with the proceeds of crime. Among his guests are Mrs. Westbury Eastman, and her daughter Polly, a pretty, charming girl, whom Strawn has made up his mind to marry. Vera Kingslake, a fascinating widow of thirty, Paul Grimshaw, Strawn's nephew, and Bob Dolliver, Strawn's secretary, complete the party.

From a crevice in the back of the bookcase in the room known as "Barbaric Sanctuary," Strawn finds the engraved plates for fifty-dollar notes, and the bank paper for printing them. For the sure the Black Fox will return for these immediately on his release, he locks them up in his own desk for safety.

Vera Kingslake, scheming to get Strawn for herself, subtly tries to get Paul Grimshaw to the fact that if his uncle does not marry, he will be the sole heir. And that if he can further the damming love affair between Dolliver and Polly, he will be the richer.

Strawn overhears Paul's later conversation with Dolliver, and threatens to disinherit his nephew entirely.

K and out without a delirium under his breath Paul cursed Vera Kingslake for making the suggestion that had set him into this fit.

A mystery is created by Polly seeing a light and hearing sounds in the book-lined room, but on opening the door the room is empty. Later the mystery deepens as the finding on the thickly coated dust of the table the imprint of the hand of a three-fingered man.

Suspicion falls on Jaspers, Strawn's butler, as having some connection with the three-fingered man.

CHAPTER VII

MRS. EASTMAN PRESSES HER POINT

Although badly upset and battling with tremors of apprehension which swept through her each time she thought of the cellar and the print of that three-fingered hand, Mrs. Westbury Eastman did not lose sight of the main issue; she knew that matters between John Strawn and Polly were rapidly approaching a climax, and that it was time her daughter be firmly impressed with the gravity and necessity of their need.

"Child," she said as they left Strawn, Dolliver and Paul Grimshaw in the book-lined room at the head of the stairs, "I wish you'd unhook me tonight. I'm so nervous that I don't feel equal to the struggle alone." While this was true, her underlying motive was to have the chance for a confidential talk and bring up naturally the subject of a prospective marriage with the wealthy man. Between them to mention of it had been made up to this time.

Vera Kingslake said good-night in a cheery sort of way which showed that she had taken more of delight than terror in the thrills of the evening, and turned in at the door of the sleeping chamber which had been assigned as hers. There was nothing that Vera Kingslake over more than excitement; it was neat and drink to her.

Dutiful Polly followed into her mother's room.

"Perhaps you'd better take an aspirin, money," she said gently. It has been a trying experience or all of us."

"Except that cat of a merry widow," snapped Mrs. Eastman. "I believe she'd enjoy it if this awful black fox person broke in on us and slashed all our throats!" She added, "Especially mine!"

"Why, money, I thought she was extremely nice to you."

"In that silly, deceitful way of hers, perhaps. I have eyes in my head, Polly, and generally use them. Can you see things that you, in your youth, overlook. Tell me, Polly, in all fairness, did you really hear me—in that room?"

And although the girl was as active of it as she had been out of the door of The House of Rogues's mystery room with the light of piercing the keyhole, laying for a brief instant upon the ark surface of her dress, she evaded the question. It was an unkind thing, she thought, to feed her mother's fright.

"We were all so upset by the tale in the cellar," she answered, "that I think we might have imagined almost anything—any of it."

"Merciful heaven!" complained Mrs. Eastman. "What on earth is the man thinking about when he bought the dismal old ruin? A crook's hang-out! Owned by a counterfeiter!"

Polly smiled faintly.

"From what you said at the dinner table," she murmured, "I thought you liked it."

Her mother sighed.

"One must say polite things in elite company, child," she answered. "Hush—especially when—he had caught herself thinking aloud; what she had started to say, especially when the miserable place is owned by a prospective m-in-law. It wouldn't, perhaps, be wise to put the thing so bluntly."

"I can understand how a man of Mr. Strawn's temperament could like a fancy to it, money. He's a rich and good-natured on the surface, but I think that underneath he's rather sombre—a house like this would appeal to his moods."

"He's lived too long a bachelor," served Mrs. Eastman, "but I think—" It was a moment of situation. "It's this Polly dear, that Mr. Strawn is—ah!—thinking very seriously of—um—ending his bachelorhood."

The girl's face flushed; her eyes set a little troubled, she silently struggled with the wait-hooks of her mother's dress. Mrs. Eastman opened her diaphragm in a deep sigh of relief.

"That feels better," she exclaimed, "and then swing back to the problem of her subject. 'Yes, Polly, feel sure that Mr. Strawn has matrimonial inclinations, and—' She smiled. 'I wouldn't be greatly surprised if I could name the lucky girl who—'

"Mother!" Polly deserted her customary "money" on occasions when she became either angry or serious. "Mother, why don't you come to the point instead of strolling around and around Robin Hood's barn? I think I understand what you mean; of course, I have seen all along that you wanted me to marry Mr. Strawn."

Mrs. Eastman stared at her daughter's face through the medium of the dressing table mirror. Polly was neither enthusiastic nor indignant. In vain did she try to read the girl's thoughts.

"Mr. Strawn is a very rich man," she said.

"And a very old one—for a girl of nineteen to have for a husband. I wonder if money would compensate, I wonder?" Her tone had a wistful edge that Mrs. Eastman thought did not bode well for the smooth sailing of her plans.

"He would be considered a great catch, Polly; most girls would jump at the chance. He must be worth two millions if he's worth a penny."

"Probably a good deal less than a million, money," said Polly, smiling faintly. "Let a poor man make a good deal of money and people always multiply it anywhere from two to ten miles. Oh, I admit that it would be enough, and he'd probably settle enough on you personally to—"

"Polly! Are you trying to intimidate that I—"

"Isn't that what you expected him to do, money—make a cash settlement. That's certainly what I would expect—if I married him. You don't think I'd be marrying him for anything else."

Although herself mercenary, Mrs. Westbury Eastman shuddered at this frankness; she preferred to cloak her meaning in softer soundings words.

"Of course," she parried, "a man like Mr. Strawn would make his bride a handsome wedding present."

Polly sat down in a low chair, and elbows on her knees, cupped her softly rounded chin within her palms.

"I wonder," she murmured, "if people don't marry for love any more."

"Polly!" Mrs. Eastman's voice vibrated with horror. "Don't tell me that you're in love with—"

"With whom, money?"

"With Bob Dolliver."

"What makes you think of Bob Dolliver?"

"As I told you, I've got eyes in my head. Haven't I seen him looking at you; don't you suppose I know the signs when I see them? So he's been making love to you, has he? He ought to be ashamed of himself, with no more money than he has!"

"The girl's mouth twisted into a crooked little smile.

"I couldn't very well, could I—until he asked me. I was wondering if you'd said anything to him—rather hinted that there was an understanding with Mr. Strawn have you?"

Now, as a matter of fact, in various subtle little ways, Mrs. Westbury Eastman had done precisely this thing, but she dared not admit it.

"No," she lied, "never. Perhaps Bob Dolliver is honorable enough to realize that he hasn't enough money to marry."

"We're living in a terrible commercial age," sighed Polly, and then her lips tightened and her head lifted. "If Bob Dolliver's got no more nerve than that I don't want him!" she flared.

"Neither you nor Bob Dolliver have been raised to love in a cottage," said Mrs. Eastman, "and you don't realize how, indignantly poor we are, child. I haven't told you, but—Polly, we're down to our last thousand. Just a thousand dollars between us and—destitution!"

Her eyes filled with tears, tears of self-pity, but which, nevertheless, had always moved Polly to quick surrender. "I've spent it all, dear, for—you. I wanted you to move with the best people; it's always been my ambition to see you marry well." Her voice choked into a gulp sob, was so happy, so full of love, that Polly, who had been thinking of the future, broke in. Polly: "I've been thinking that when I am thirty, still a young woman, Mr. Strawn will be sixty, an old, old man. Oh, I know he's substantial and I don't exactly detest him; no, I rather think that I could respect him. But—why do we talk like this when he hasn't even asked me yet?"

"He will ask you, Polly," declared the mother. "I know the signs. I—I hope you won't be rash or foolish. Only a thousand dollars—three times that, much owed in bills. What will we ever do? My child, what can we do?"

"I've heard," Polly answered dryly, "that sometimes people work for a living. I could work, money, until the right man came along—to ask me."

Her mother smiled humorously. "What sort of work would you do?" she demanded.

"Well, perhaps—er—typing," Polly answered vaguely.

"Ten dollars a week, fifteen at the most. Your clothes this last year cost nearly five thousand, which is, I believe, about a hundred dollars a week. You're not trained to work at anything."

"It might be better if I had, money, but—I suppose it can't be helped now. About the only thing left for me is to—to marry John Strawn. I—I suppose I will."

"That's sensible and—er—safe. I don't want to urge you, Polly dear, against your wishes, but poverty's such a terrible thing! It would kill me, child, simply kill me. A terrible, dingy little flat with windows looking out on a dark court, squalling brats—ugh! Can't you see it? We couldn't stand it, we couldn't."

Polly slowly got to her feet. "No, perhaps we couldn't," she admitted, "although I could stand almost anything if—if there was love enough to make up for it." She leaned over and kissed her mother's cheek. "Don't worry, I—I suppose that I've just been indulging in a romantic little day dream, and I think you can depend on me to do the sensible thing." She moved to the door.

Outside a wind was rising, sweeping in from the sea; a shutter banged against the side of the house. Mrs. Eastman jumped.

"You—you must make him sell this, this crook's hang-out," she shuddered. Evidently she considered the matter as good as settled.

BERNARD SHAW ANSWERS WELLS

Both Points of View on Vivisection Will Be Presented by Speakers Tonight

When H. G. Wells contributed a series of articles to The Sunday Express entitled "The Way We Are Going," he included one in favor of vivisection.

No replies were permitted to these articles, but the editor finally allowed one from George Bernard Shaw, who was holiday making in Italy when the article first appeared.

Mr. Wells endeavors to point out that scientific research and the pursuit of knowledge are in accord with the progress of civilization and thinks that the amount of animal suffering connected with vivisection is infinitesimal compared with what might occur, for instance, in a single pheasant shoot.

Mr. Shaw's attitude is that vivisection cannot be tolerated on any grounds and maintains that science does not elevate conduct; he believes that we are heading for an explosion of popular wrath as a result of present methods of vivisectional medicine.

Mr. Wells' attack on anti-vivisectionists and G. Bernard Shaw's reply have been published in the American press and both sides of the question will be presented at a meeting of the local Anti-Vivisection Society tonight at 8 o'clock in the Victoria Club, Campbell Building.

Mr. W. H. Stokes will read the article by H. G. Wells and Mr. O. J. Boulton that of G. B. Shaw. The meeting is a public one and discussion is invited.

Miss Gladys Shrapnel will contribute the musical selections.

London now has 500 miles of sewers, and claims that they are the best constructed of the kind in the world.

Premier Said to Approve Great Lakes Plan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Cooperation of Premier Mackenzie King's Government of Canada with the United States for the protection of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterways was predicted today by W. L. Harding, president of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association, after a call upon President Coolidge.

He said he had "heard rumors" that the Premier intended to head a commission to seek an agreement with the United States and he believed these to be true.

SALADA TEA CO. EXPANDS

Canadian Company Opens New Building in Boston for Convenience of American Connections

HON. P. C. LARKIN

One hears a great deal about the expansion of United States industry in Canada; therefore, it is interesting to note that Canadians can, and do, expand their business on the other side of the border. This was emphasized at the recent opening in Boston, Mass., of the magnificent new building of the Salada Tea Company—a Canadian enterprise with world-wide ramifications.

The building was opened by Hon. P. C. Larkin in the presence of Governor Fuller, of Massachusetts; Mayor Nichols, of Boston, and leading state and city officials. Referring to the imposing nature of the building, and the fact that it was the largest in the world devoted to the packing of tea, each speaker commented upon the success which had attended this great Canadian enterprise in the United States field.

Architecturally the building is a handsome ten-story structure, and enjoys the distinction of possessing a pair of the finest bronze doors in the world. These doors, which are the work of Henry Wilson, an English sculptor, were awarded a medal by the French Salon, where models were on exhibition this spring. They are said to rank in beauty with the doors of the cathedrals in Milan and Mayence.

The interior of the building is notable for the remarkable collection of tapestry, carvings, cloisonné ware, metal work and ceramics. Great Buddhas, which have seen centuries pass gaze patiently with folded arms upon a modern business. Richly colored Oriental rugs transform the floor into gay garden patches with aisles of marble. In the great windows some of the smaller and rarer pieces present themselves to the passing public. Throughout the building officials and employees will have light, airy and most pleasant surroundings in which to work, with a luxuriant clubroom on the top floor for rest and relaxation. The clubroom is furnished with handsome lounges and large comfortable chairs, upholstered in English red morocco, tables in color to match, Oriental rugs on the floor, and rare Chinese tapestries on the walls, with antique pieces distributed around the room, and on the inner wall a huge inviting open fireplace. Just below the clubroom is the cafeteria, to be maintained for the use of the employees.

Speaking about the beauties of the new building, Mr. Larkin said: "Of course, you know, we don't want to be boastful about these works of art. The building is new, but we have been many years collecting some of the nicest things we have. All our buildings have the same general sort of surroundings for executives and employees. We started doing these things years ago—before we even had much money to spend in such ways.

"It isn't extravagance, really. Forbidding surroundings hinder production in any line of business. I know that it's good business. We very seldom have any one leave our employ. Sometimes two whole years go by without a person leaving the company either in Canada or United States. We have never had any labor disputes of any kind. Such things cost money. It is expensive to train new employees. It is expensive to put employees in a jail-like place and have them merely endure their work until the time comes when they can get out."

The question of speed limits and smoking regulations on the Cariboo Highway is now in committee. It is reported by the Automobile Club of British Columbia.

ELEVATOR PLANS BEING CHANGED

C. D. HOWE & COMPANY RECOMMEND CHANGES WHICH ARE BEING EMBODIED

Extension of Time Asked as Plans Will Not Be Ready Within 90 Days Set in By-Law

C. D. Howe & Company, engineers, employed by the city to approve the plans and specifications of the Panama Pacific Grain Terminals Ltd., 1,000,000-bushel elevator, reported to Mayor J. Carl Pendray yesterday that they had suggested several changes in the general layout. These changes had been recommended to the firm of John Metcalf & Sons, engineers, for the contractors, and they were now revising the plans along the lines suggested by the city's engineers.

Owing to the fact that the construction plans would have to be made before construction could be commenced, C. D. Howe & Company recommended in its letter to the Mayor that the council extend the ninety-day period, which was the limit set in which the grain company was to have construction started on the elevator. The plans were at present inspecting were general and outline plans.

Extension of the ninety-day period would not delay the work, the city's engineers stated, as the elevator could be built easily within eight months. As long as it was completed by September 1 there was no need to worry if construction was not actually got under way until a few weeks after the time limit.

C. D. Howe & Company said they were particularly anxious to have the revised construction plans signed, sealed and delivered before erection was started. It was because of this that they were asking for an extension of time for the Panama Pacific Grain Terminals Ltd.

ARREST AScribed TO RELIGIOUS TEACHING

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 28.—Twenty-eight employees of the Near East Relief in Russian Armenia, have been arrested by the Soviet authorities.

A majority of those imprisoned were teachers in American orphanages and schools, the advices received here said.

No reason for the arrests was given by the Soviet authorities except that they were acting under orders from Moscow.

It is reported here that the Soviet authorities suspected the Near East Relief employees of violating the Governmental decree which prohibits the religious teaching of children.

Lord Fleming heard only part of the evidence, taking the evidence of Miss Talmadge herself as she is leaving for California to carry out a film contract.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

RECOGNIZING DISEASE TENDENCIES

When disease develops it will be found that the ailing one has a certain leaning toward one kind of disease or another. Roughly stated, there will be the tendency to the tubercular diseases or to the rheumatic type of disorders or, in another case, to the nervous troubles. Hereditary influences, no doubt, play some part in determining the type of disease toward which one has a predisposition; but there is no valid reason for assuming that heredity compels one to have a certain disease, but rather it appears that only an inclination is present at birth which has an influence in determining what disorder will develop later on in life. This proclivity to a definite trouble may be easily changed, if it is recognized early enough in life. Habits for health may be cultivated and proper environments selected which will quickly change the tendency toward a specific weakness and naturally develop the necessary resistance for safety; but the recognition of a proneness toward a disorder will make it possible by study and application to evolve and produce a greater degree of strength than that possessed by the average person.

If one has an inclination toward tuberculosis, this can be overcome by the cultivation of a strong chest and diaphragm, with proper care that exertion is not allowed to develop. If your child has a narrow chest and gets tired easily, you must see to it that he takes deep breathing exercises to enlarge the size of the thorax, and carefully regulate his hours of play and study so that he never becomes over tired.

leads to the development of the rheumatic toxins. In that case no particular food will be found to be at fault, but rather poor combinations of the best food will furnish the unwholesome mixtures which tend to build up the rheumatic diathesis.

Nervous children should be encouraged to develop the physical, and the tendency to too much mental development must be discouraged by providing enough interesting exercise in the form of games and sports. An effort should be made to teach this type of child to divert his energy, part of the time, away from study and self-contemplation to cheerful and constructive physical expression.

In short, if the recognition of one aptness to certain weaknesses is observed, this tendency may be entirely overcome by the systematic practice of good health habits substituted for those bad ones toward which one has a careless leaning.

The teacher was examining the children on their lesson about dreams. When the examination was over, she asked Bobbie if he believed in dreams.

Bobbie—"Yes, ma'am."

Teacher—"Why?"

Bobbie—"Because one night I dreamt I was awake, and it happened the next morning."
